CHINESE LOOTERS SHOOT AND ATTACK U. S. WOMEN

Shanghai, China, March 25 (A.P.).—Wanton destruction, vandalism and outrages, perpetrated by uniformed Cantonese troops in Nanking, are described in reports tonight from the trouble-torn city on the Yangtse. Approximately 20 Americans are yet unaccounted for. Thus far the only known American fatality is the death of Dr. J.E. Williams, of Shawnee, Ohio, a member of the Northern Presbyterian Mission, and vice-president of Nanking University.

An ultimatum by the American and British naval commanders, backed by the muzzles of big guns trained on the Cantonese positions, has eased the perilous position of the foreigners, and the first of the 120 American missionaries who took refuge in the university while yesterday's fighting was under way, began arriving at the dock near the warships early tonight.

One of them, a "Miss Moffatt" (Anna E. Moffett of Fort Sheridan, Ill., is listed as being at Nanking), had been shot twice through the body.

American women were subjected to the greatest brutality during the anti-foreign rioting, the reports say, and in many cases their clothing was partly torn off by Nationalist soldiers in uniform.

The reports reiterate that practically all the outrages, both against persons and property, were carried out by uniformed Nationalists, thus fixing the responsibility for the outbreak on the southern forces.

There is reason to believe that the majority of American homes and mission properties in the city were looted and burned.

It is known that the Nanking Theological Seminary and the Hillcrest School, valuable American mission properties, were destroyed by fire.

All the official and personal property at the American consulate was looted or destroyed by uniformed nationalists.

A French priest is said to have been shot with a pistol by a Nationalist officer.

120 MISSING AMERICANS SAFE

Shanghai, March 26 (1 A. M.), (I.N.S.).—One hundred and twenty Americans whose fate in Nanking has been unknown for twenty-four hours and who were officially believed to have been massacred, are safe and have arrived at the Nanking bund for evacuation, according to an official report to navy headquarters here this morning.

NEWS COMES from China not pleasant or reassuring. Many Americans killed, the British consul and a British missionary are shot. Britain and the United States serve an ultimatum on the Chinese, but that will not influence the Revolutionists' determination to get rid of foreigners.

ONE JAPANESE marine was shot dead yesterday, while Japanese troops were rescuing European and American foreigners, and that death may have results. Japan must maintain her prestige in Asia.

But marching through crowds of passive Chinese in ordinary times is different from handling tens of millions in the heat of revolutionary frenzy.

SNYDER CHILD CHEERS SLAYER-MOTHER IN JAIL

New York, March 25.—Little Lorraine Snyder, 9-year-old child, whose life, unknown to herself, has been blighted by the tragic slaying of her artist, father, Albert Snyder today paid her first visit to her mother, since the latter's arrest on the charge of participating in the terrible crime.

All the news of her mother's arrest and accusations against her and her suitor, Henry Judd Gray, has been withheld from the little girl.

Today, bearing a big bouquet of flowers, she tripped gaily into the Queens County jail to see her mother. She had been told that the jail was a hospital and that her mother was there on account of nervous reaction she suffered from her husband's death.

Mrs. Snyder was allowed to meet

ARGONAUT CLUB SWEPT BY BLAZE; LOSS $50,000

The Argonaut Club, Boston's most exclusive and most-discussed night club, is no more.

Flames did what former Mayor Curley, various reformers, and half the Boston police department failed to do. Fire destroyed the rendezvous for Boston's social leaders of both sexes, the Bohemian meeting place of notables, of famous actors and actresses, located in the incongruous setting in the loft of the building at Rowes' Wharf.

Costly paintings, beautiful draperies and furnishings of all kinds that cost the promoters a large sum were destroyed when flames swept through the building early today.

While the inner harbor was lighted by the flames that shot skyward from the roof of the five-story brick

HOUSE UPHOLDS FULLER ON BANKING BILL VETO

Governor Fuller today won a victory in one half of his fight over banking legislation. The House of Representatives, by a decisive vote, upheld his veto of three measures which would give trust companies the right to establish branches in adjacent territory.

The second half of the governor's fight has been postponed until Monday, when the House will take up the general banking bill advocated by the governor. Friends of the governor believe the bill will pass the House, but fear defeat when it reaches the Senate.

IDENTIFY M'LAUGHLIN AS PRESENT AT HOLDUP

For the first time since his trial began, Peter J. McLaughlin, charged with the murder of James Ferneau, watchman at the Waltham carbarn, was placed definitely today at the holdup scene as one of the robbers.

Identification of McLaughlin by William P. Baker, a conductor, came after McLaughlin's alleged "confession," declaring Peter V. King to have been one of the holdup gang, was read in Middlesex Superior Court.

Conductor Baker testified that he saw McLaughlin's face before he had covered it with a handkerchief and was positive that the robber and the defendant were the same individual McLaughlin, the conductor said, held a gun to him all during the holdup.

AUTOMOBILE MASHERS LOSE THEIR LICENSES

"Automobile mashers" ran afoul of a reef in the office of Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, today, when three autoists charged with accosting women on Tremont street were notified that their licenses were revoked.

The hearings were the first in the campaign being waged by the registrar to rid the streets of night-cruising auto sheiks. Police have been powerless in dealing with the situation because of the failure of women to prosecute their accosters and they appealed to Mr. Goodwin.

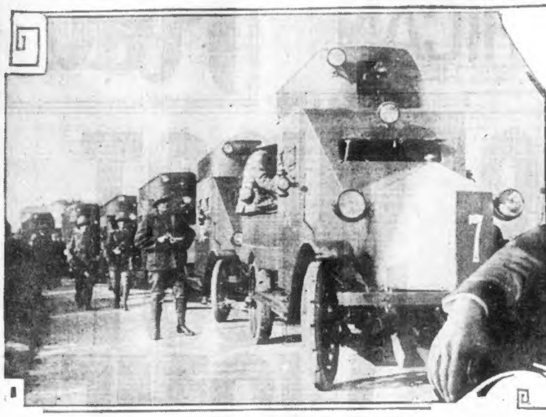
UNITED STATES PREPARED TO SEND GREATER FORCE TO CHINA

Tanks Back Ultimatum ∾ Admiral of U. S. Fleet ∾ On the March in China



GUNS IN TURRETS READY TO SHOOT

U. S. MAY SEND BIGGER FORCE FROM HERE

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.,
Editor of Universal Service

Washington, March 25.—President Coolidge will give to the Cantonese government, whose forces have just taken Shanghai, the same effective "co-operation" in the protection of Americans that he gave to the Peking government while its forces held Shanghai.

That is why six more American men of war have been ordered to proceed to Shanghai.

But there will be no foot-race between President Coolidge and premiers of Europe and Japan to see who shall be the first to recognize the Canton government as the Republic of China.

Recognition will depend upon what the Cantonese do rather than upon what they say they intend to do. The ability to protect Americans as well as the will must be demonstrated before any hope of recognition by Washington will be justified.

MILLIONS IN CLAIMS.

And protection of Americans will include the payments of claims of Americans who have suffered heavy losses in China during recent years. These claims, as long ago as June, 1925, amounted to more than $30,000,000 gold. Their total today is, of course, much larger.

Admiral Williams, the senior naval officer in Chinese waters, will command twenty-one American men of war, and twenty-nine additional ships at Manila, which await his orders to proceed to China.

PLANS PREPARED.

Whenever Admiral Williams says he needs any more men of war to enable him to protect Americans in China, President Coolidge will order re-enforcements from the United States.

It is the obvious intention of the Washington government not to be left in the humiliating position of appealing to Europe or Japan to protect Americans in China.

President Coolidge determined upon this policy last Autumn. That was why he ordered Admiral Williams back from Manila to Shanghai long before Congress adjourned.

Wrong Food and Drink Menace to Mrs. Snyder

By EDNA M. BLAKE

Mrs. Ruth Snyder, born New York City, March 27, 1895, 11:30 P. M.

This is a woman who was betrayed as much by wrong food as by drink, if the charges against her are true. She would have been cautioned to abstain from the use of flesh foods and to guard against an excess of sulphur in her diet, if her horoscope had been analyzed in time.

The hysterical, restless, nervous, sportive Sagittarians need careful training, and though they cannot stand control and restraint, they may be guided along lines allowing plenty of scope for action and a natural outlet for their excessive energy.

Mars and Neptune in conjunction opposing the ascendant increased the mental restlessness, in this case, and caused her to have a chaotic, visionary mind.

She has originality, enterprise and self-reliance, with the ability to plan, power of review and comparison, and shrewd diplomacy, and this gives her egotistic pleasure in clever contriving and intrigue, but she is vacillating and impractical.

The Sun and Moon in the martial sign Aries show her to be head-strong and defiant, disregarding convention and social laws, proud, extravagant, fond of sports, pleasure and display; gay, with much initiative; and the several good aspects denote that she is mirthful, animated, perceptive, impressionable, versatile and dexterous; capable of adapting herself to the requirements of the moment; nimble and apt; fond of singing and dancing, fond of children and pets, hospitable, ever desiring novelty, travel and change, with a fertile imagination and resourcefulness.

Censure, criticism and ridicule would bring out her worst side, and Venus afflicted by Saturn indicates that she would meet with lack of response to her impetuous love-nature from the marriage partner, and this she could not tolerate.

Gray Proud, Stubborn and Very Impulsive

Henry Judd Gray, born Cortland, New York, July 5, 1892, 1:30 A. M.

The fruitful earth sign, Taurus, was rising, with Venus combust and afflicting Jupiter, which indicates a proud, stubborn, sensual and dramatic temperament, susceptible to flattery. He is ease-loving, fond of show, amorous, apathetic, mutable, bombastic and boastful; very strongly affected by his environment and would do a very great deal for praise, but is repining, resentful and sullen if criticised.

The passional and emotional tendencies seem to predominate; he has a strong desire for comforts, luxuries and costly surroundings, though it is shown that he has been forced to be content with the best show or substitute possible; he would gratify his tastes, however, buying the best that he could afford in ornament, dress and food; he is careful of his own interests; subtle and selfish.

His is a spirit which holds to a purpose in the face of opposition, and he has much courage; is forceful and rebellious, reserved, secretive and aggressive.

He has impulsive, irregular and sarcastic turns of mind, is very critical, skeptical and peculiar, with positive assurance, though he may be easily swayed through the emotions, through kindness and sympathy, and when convicted of a wrong-doing he may be abjectly remorseful.

Neptune ascending makes him an excellent conversationalist, persuasive, logical and convincing in argument. He is a very good reasoner, though abrupt and wilful; is rough and ready and capable in emergency.

At his best he is a great traveler, quick walker, able worker, inventive, with mechanical ability, enterprising, curious and fond of experiment and adventure.

SNYDER CHILD CHEERS 'LOVE SLAYER' IN JAIL

the child in the big prison reception room, where there is little evidence of the grim purpose of the structure. The child talked happily during her visit and the accused mother was visibly cheered when the child was finally led away.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Snyder completely collapsed and it was necessary for jail physicians to apply heart stimulants before she regained consciousness.

Gray, also confined in the jail charged with the murder of the artist, is in a bad way, physically. He spent the night in his cell alternately cursing and reading the Bible, according to jail attendants.

Finally he threw the Bible into a corner of the cell and, falling to his knees, muttered pious petitions, which were punctuated with profane expressions.

New York, March 25 (A.P.).—A new light on the seeming mystery concerning a bottle of poison liquor in the Snyder-Gray murder case was cast today by the police when it was announced that the bottle had been found, not in the Snyder home in Queens Village, but in a suitcase in Gray's hotel room in Syracuse.

The sample analyzed, it was definitely determined today, contained enough poison to kill a man, and it is the expressed opinion of the authorities that it had been the intention of Mrs. Ruth Synder and her paramour, Henry Judd Gray, to use it to cause Albert Snyder's death.

The police believe Gray took it with him from the Snyder home when other means to kill the man had succeeded.

NO POISON IN BODY.

Meantime Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, city toxicologist, who discovered the presence of the poison in the whisky, today continued his search for possible traces of other poison in Snyder's organs.

Disregarding, for the time being, the confessions made by Mrs. Snyder and Gray, District Attorney Newcombe began questioning persons in the hope of building up a circumstantial case.

He talked with an unnamed corset

GOV. FULLER SOUNDS CALL FOR SENSIBLE ECONOMY

SLEUTHS TRAIL $16,000 HUB BOND THIEF

Detectives of the W. J. Burns Agency, armed with an excellent description of the man believed to have stolen $16,000 in negotiable securities from the Atlantic National Bank, followed a trail which led to two suburban towns today.

The securities stolen from the desk of Assistant Cashier Robert W. Coburn of Melrose while he stepped across the lobby, had been sent from the offices of Drury, Merchant & Co in the same building.

A complete description of the bonds was broadcast to the various firms involved within a few minutes after the thief had made his escape. Gertrude Brada, telephone operator in the Drury, Merchant office, notified police and the detective agency.

BECKWITH BOY GETS $445,000

Providence, Mar 25 (A.P.)—Judge Stone in the Municipal Court today approved a compromise agreement in the Lawrence Beckwith case, whereby the infant son of the late Lorania C. Beckwith, now living in California, gets the William L. Beckwith estate, amounting to about $445,000, relinquishes all claim to the Jane and Lorania Beckwith estates, amounting to approximately $300,000.

VALUE OF POWER LINKUPS TOLD N. E. COUNCIL

Summoning business men of New England to a rally to a greater participation in government, Governor Alvan T. Fuller, speaking before the New England Council at the Statler Hotel today, cited as New England's handicaps in competition with other sections—

High taxes.
High cost of labor.
High cost of transportation.
High cost of power.

"I am not in favor of lower wages, but as for taxes—well, I hate to think what the tax rates will be in 1940," said the Governor.

"You do not take the proper interest in government. There is a certain legitimate growth in expenses in my State but when a Governor wants to abolish expensive obsolete services he finds even businessmen opposing him.

SENSIBLE ECONOMY NEEDED.

"What we need is men who can and will take a stand for sensible economy, not in necessary expenditures, not in welfare appropriations but in things we can and should do without."

Governor Fuller cited as one example of waste a project for spending $50,000 on Cape Cod for development of "harbors for the use of rich people with their yachts."

New England is ahead of all other sections of the country in development of its electric power resources and yet has in reserve more potential power that it has thus far developed, the council delegates were told by President Charles L. Edgar of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston.

Especially in interconnection of electric lines between independent private companies is New England ahead of the field, declared Mr. Edgar, as he painted a word-picture of the future with a network of in-

WIFE ARRESTED BY HUSBAND WHO'S A COP

A set-to in Haymarket square, following which Traffic Officer Cecil V. Craig is alleged to have arrested his own wife for striking him with an umbrella, was described today in Suffolk Probate Court by Attorney Peter C. Borre.

Attorney Borre, counsel for Mrs. Ethel Craig, the wife, told Judge Prest that Officer Craig ejected his wife from their Dorchester home and that on the following day she went to his post of duty, in Haymarket square, to see about the children.

According to the lawyer, the traffic officer pushed his wife away from him and she struck him with her umbrella.

Officer Craig placed his wife under arrest, the lawyer said, but captain Bernard Hoppe of the traffic squad refused to allow Craig to prosecute her.

The wife, who is suing for separate support on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment, was given temporary custody of the children, Priscilla, four years old, and George, three, and Craig was ordered to pay $12 a week toward their support.

FIND FIRE TRUCK PIPE CLOGGED IN MALDEN

Firemen at the Maplewood station in Malden were subjected to several hours of questioning by Chief John T. Nicolls today, following the discovery of a wad of cotton waste jammed into the gasoline feed pipe in Combination C.

The discovery was made by Master Mechanic Edward C. Brooks of the Malden Fire Department, following a report that the apparatus showed signs of engine trouble while responding to an alarm from Box 341 yesterday.

Fire Commissioner C. David Berg ordered an investigation. Eighteen men comprising the day and night shifts at the station in charge of Captains Sidney H. Dailey and A. Wallace Keddie were questioned by Chief Nicolls.

According to members of the department there has been no recent evidence of friction at the station. Several years ago reports of ill-feeling among the members were investigated, but since that time it was said that harmony prevailed.

SENTENCED TO 2 WEEKS FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Dr. Chester D. Sandiford of Goden street, Belmont, was sentenced to two weeks in the House of Correction and fined $50 today in Municipal Court for reckless driving of an automobile. He appealed.

Traffic Officer John F. Manning testified that the doctor's car crashed into a parked automobile in Commonwealth avenue and besides damaging this car, knocked it against a second which in turn collided with a third.

Othello ∾ Desdemona Cleared ∾ Shakespeare's Drama of Jealousy

"Wear thy good rapier bare, and put it home. It makes us, or it mars us."

The villainous Iago, having aroused senseless jealousy in Othello that ended in the Moor murdering his wife, Desdemona, now sent a confederate to kill Cassio. Cassio defended himself successfully and wounded his opponent.

"On horror's head horrors accumulate; Do deeds to make heaven weep, all earth amaz'd."

As Cassio defended himself against the man sent by Iago to kill him, Iago, coming up from behind, thrust his rapier into Cassio's leg, and ran off. On the man killed by Cassio, letters were found giving proof of Iago's treachery.

"This deed of thine is no more worthy of heaven Than thou was't worthy of her."

Othello, denounced by Emilia as a murderer, informs her that her husband, Iago, had been the one to inform him against his wife, Desdemona. Iago entered as Emilia said that he had lied about Othello's wife, who was pure.

"Let heaven and men and devils, let them all, All, all, cry shame against me!"

Othello, learning of Iago's perfidy, realized that he had murdered an innocent woman, and fell sobbing over her body. Iago attempted to stab Emilia, but was restrained. Cassio was brought in, with proof of Iago's villainy.

SNYDER KILLED AFTER PLOT TO POISON HIM FAILED

salesman and a stenographer, both reported party companions with Mrs. Snyder and her paramour a few nights before the murder.

QUIZ NEW WITNESSES.

The district attorney also examined the bus driver who said he took Gray to the Snyder home about 10 o'clock Saturday night, and a taxi driver, who took Gray from the Snyder home to the railroad station at 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

None of the poisoned whiskey had been taken recently by Snyder, Dr. Gettler said after an analysis of the victim's brain and intestinal organs.

"It is probable that the poisoner or poisoners overshot the mark by putting so great a quantity of poison in the whiskey as to give it a noticeable taste," Dr. Gettler asserted. "Whether he was suspicious of the flavor or not, Snyder had wisely kept away from the bottle."

WERE "UNITED IN CRIME."

The alleged poison plot was revealed by Gray while he and Mrs. Snyder were being arraigned before Superior Court Justice Callaghan at Long Island City. Both entered pleas of not guilty and Justice Callaghan set April 11 as the trial date.

Mrs. Snyder and Gray saw each other a second time since the killing when they were arraigned. They stood elbow to elbow before the justice, but did not speak to each other.

Requests of counsel for separate trials were not considered by the court. Justice Callaghan announced that the trial judge must determine the question.

District Attorney Newcombe of Queens Couny announced his opposition to separate trials. "They were united in crime and should be united in court," he said.

GRAY READS HIS BIBLE.

Mrs. Snyder in an interview with newspapermen reiterated she had no part in the killing and said her "love for Henry Gray has turned to hate."

Gray spent the day reading the Bible in his cell and talking with friends and officials.

"I am absolutely innocent of this crime," Mrs. Snyder told interviewers. "If I ever did have any love or affection for Henry Judd Gray, it has turned to hate. I hate him for his cruel and brutal murder of my husband and because he tried to entangle me in it."

Mrs. Snyder looked more haggard and worn than any time since her arrest shortly after the killing. She said she had not slept and that she was "past crying."

Today she awaited her first reunion with her nine-year-old daughter, Lorraine. "I don't know what I'll tell her," the woman said. "She doesn't know I am a prisoner."

Absolute innocence will be the defense of Mrs. Snyder, her lawyer said. Indications are that Gray will plead insanity.

One jail visitor quoted Gray as saying:

"I don't understand it. I don't know why I did it. It was not me, as I know myself. It must have been some other pha . When I came to my senses and realized what I had done, I said. 'It is not Judd Gray that did this thing. It is some other phase.'"

Believe Gray Planned to End Life if Plot Failed

New York, March 25 (I.N.S.).—Henry Judd Gray, held with Mrs. Ruth Snyder charged with the murder of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, magazine art editor, had laid a careful plan to enable him to commit suicide in case the crime was charged to him, authorities revealed today.

The bottle of whiskey containing quantities of bichloride of mercury which was first reported to have been found in the Snyder home, was in reality discovered in Gray's hotel room in Syracuse at the time of his arrest, police stated.

It was said that Gray planned to drink the deadly poison if he became connected with the crime, but that his arrest was so sudden tha his plan was frustrated.

As detectives were searching th hotel room after bursting in an arresting Gray, they came upon th liquor in his suitcase, and one o them smelled it.

"Good God don't drink that," Gra shouted, "It's poison."

The liquor was brought to Nev Yark, and analysis proved that on drink of the fluid would kill a ma instantly. In consequence of thi discovery of a plan which police be leve wias designed to cheat the electric chair, Gray was carefully guarded in his cell today, to prevent th possibility of his taking some othe means to end his life.

Civil War Vet, 86, Seeks to Divorce His Sixth Wife

Pittsfield, March 25 (A.P.).—Henry W. Sawyer, aged eighty-six, of No. 219 New West street, a Civil War veteran, has filed in Probate Court here a petition for a divorce from his sixth wife, Mrs. Marion M. Sawyer of Worcester, who is about sixty years old. His first five wives are dead.

Sawyer charges cruel and abusive treatment February 26, 1924, at Oxford.

On May 9, 1924, in Probate Court, Worcester, a decree was handed down that Sawyer was living apart from his wife for justifiable cause.

and Bolton of [illegible] 4 reported the case of Albert Arthurs of Westland avenue, Amos D. Salisbury of Brattle street, Cambridge, and Leo Scarparto of London street, [illegible].

Arthurs denied that he had spoken to two girls on Tremont street, saying his friend who was driving a rented car made the approach and offered to give the girls a lift. He told the registrar his friend knew the girls, but the police offered testimony to show the girls received the advances in cold silence. A temporary license issued to Arthurs only three weeks ago [illegible] voked.

Amos Salisbury did not appear to contest the charges against him.

According to the police, Amos approached two groups of girls on Tremont street on the night of Feb. 9 and invited them for a ride. He was repulsed twice before the police stopped him for questioning. It was unnecessary to take action on his case, his license having been revoked a week ago for failure to pay compulsory insurance.

Sheiks Turn Cowboys But Fail to Lasso Taunton Shebas

Taunton, March 25—An attempt by two youths to lasso two girls whom they wanted to "pick up" for an automobile ride was told of today when the girls reported to the police.

The girls were talking together in West street, according to their story, when an automobile drew near. One youth was riding on the running-board. As the car slowed down he leaped to the sidewalk and cast a lariat which fell harmlessly as the girls ran into a bowling alley to escape.

$65,000 RUM CARGO TAKEN

The schooner Harvard, with more than half the crew from Boston, which has been anchored in Rum Row for the past month, was driven inside the imaginary line by a stiff southeast wind today and her cargo of $65,000 worth of the best whiskey was seized by coast guardsmen.

The schooner was followed in by a coast guard boat under command of Coxswain Stone, and she was chased right up to the dock here. The crew all leaped ashore and got away.

The schooner is owned by Lawrence Torrigvolsa of Gloucester, and the vessel was in command of Captain Frank Marino of Boston.

KING ACCUSED BY M'LAUGHLIN

by George Douglas, defense counsel. McLaughlin's alleged confession was allowed by Judge Dubuque.

In the statement, claimed by New York detectives to have been made to them, it was brought out that McLaughlin used and worked under his own name in New York, and subsequent cross-examination of one New York inspector brought out the admission that it was a roofers' strike that delayed the hunt for McLaughlin.

LEFT STRANDED.

McLaughlin, according to the "confession," did not take part in the holdup. Through confusion of plans, he was left stranded at Brighton, where he was to have been picked up by the car.

The car, the statement said, was one secured by King after McLaughlin had been unable to hire a machine he had in prospect at Brookline Village.

McLaughlin admitted in the statement that he, with Edward J. Heinlein, John J. Devereaux and King, planned the robbery at King's home.

King even received $200 as his share of the money, the statement said, and Joseph Bennett, at whose home in Brighton the money was divided, received $100.

IN ON THE LOOT.

McLaughlin said, according to the statement, that when he realized the others had probably gone along without him he made his way to the home of Bennett, arriving there a short time before the party returned with the money from the carbarn.

At Bennett's home Devereaux counted the money and then apportioned it out—$160 to Bennett, $200 to King, $240 to Peter McLaughlin, $300 each to Heinlein and Devereaux. For John McLaughlin, the statement said, $160 was put in a bag and laid aside.

In the alleged "confession" Peter McLaughlin is declared to have said he fled Boston because he figured that as one of the original planners he had incurred guilt as an accessory if nothing else.

OBJECTIONS TAKEN.

Throughout District Attorney Bushnell's reading of the purported statement, Attorney Douglas objected vigorously to the District Attorney's stressing of certain points. Defence counsel saved many exceptions.

Judge Dubuque finally ordered that Bushnell cease reading the statement and turn it over to Joseph F. Donovan, official stenographer of the New York Homicide Bureau, who took the statement. He finished the reading.

Prior to the reading of the alleged confession, Inspectors Thomas J. Martin and Stephen G. Donahue of the New York Homicide Bureau both denied that there had been any rough treatment of McLaughlin to force the statement from him.

Inspector Martin was cross-examined by Attorney Douglas.

Q.—Didn't you go to McLaughlin's room and find a loaded revolver as a result of what he told you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he say that the brief case was the property of his roommate? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he say that the gun was also? A.—No, I am positive he said the gun was his.

OBJECTION EXCLUDED.

Q.—Did you say anything about doing business with him during the interview? A.—No.

Q.—"Doing business," as used in the New York police department, means clubbing a witness to make him tell things, doesn't it?

On an objection by District Attorney Bushnell, the question was excluded.

Q.—Was he threatened with being beaten up if he didn't tell the truth? A.—No.

Q.—Was he thrown on the floor and his head bent down at any time? A.—No.

Q.—It was rather a searching examination, wasn't it? A.—I don't know about that.

Q.—You know that Captain Cary, in command of the homicide bureau, is one of the best cross-examiners in the country? A.—In my opinion he is.

Q.—Was McLaughlin nervous? A.—He smoked a cigarette and did not appear nervous.

Q.—Was he lying down at any time? A.—No.

Q.—It was a pleasant little party, wasn't it? (Excluded)

CHINESE LOOTERS STRIP WOMEN OF CLOTHING IN NANKING

The vanguard of the missionaries arriving at the dock were without military escort, but it is stated that they were not molested while making the trip to the river. Whether the entire 120 are coming out has not been established.

YIELD TO ULTIMATUM

Their appearance on the waterfront followed the ultimatum by the Anglo-American naval officers that, if the foreigners were not permitted to leave the city, the Cantonese positions would be bombarded.

It was stated authoritatively tonight that, as the result of "negotiations between the Anglo-Americans and Chinese" there was no bombardment.

General Pai Tsung-Hsi, Cantonese commander in Shanghai, interviewed at his headquarters here tonight, insisted that the Nationalists should not be blamed for the Nanking outrages.

Fifty thousand northern soldiers and from 2,000 to 3,000 white Russians were in Nanking shortly before the outbreak of yesterday, he said. The northern retreat began Wednesday afternoon.

The fleeing troops reached the river bank at Hsia-Kwan (the port section of Nanking), found the river transport inadequate, and began an orgy of rioting, looting and burning.

General Pai said he hoped the Nanking incident would be settled peacefully, in a manner which would not inflame the Chinese against the foreigners.

BLAMES "GUNMEN"

Pai identified the Nationalist commander in Nanking as Chen Chien one of the Nationalists' "Big Four" generals.

He complained that gangs of plain clothes gunmen cropped up wherever the Nationalist armies appeared, and said their suppression was one of the most difficult problems confronting the Southerners.

Pai did not visit the American Consul-General Clarence E. Gauss in his official visit to the consular officials today, although he called at the Japanese and Soviet consulates general on either side of the American.

He sent his secretary to Mr Gauss, pleading that time was short and asking for another appointment.

Boston 'Devil Dogs' Told to Go to the Scene of War

Two of Uncle Sam's "Devil Dogs," Corp. Edward J. O'Connor and Corporal Henry L. Claude, who have been stationed in Boston for some time past, doing recruiting duty, were ordered today to China.

The two Marines will sail from Boston tomorrow morning for Hampton Roads, Va., at which place they will board a transport for the Far East.

Corporal O'Connor has been living at the Charlestown Y. M. C. A., while Corporal Claude has made his home at No. 5 Haviland street, Back Bay.

Threatened Shelling Postponed One Day

Washington, March 25 (A.P.)—Preparations for a bombardment by American and British ships at Nanking have been postponed until tomorrow because of a partial evacuation of the city by foreigners.

Notice had been served on the Cantonese commanders at Nanking that salient military points would be shelled unless immediate guarantees of safety for foreign life were furnished.

The bombardment was to have begun late this afternoon.

The decision to postpone the drastic action decided upon was reached by the American and British naval commanders when it was seen that concrete results had followed the announcement of their firm stand.

Rear Admiral H. M. Hough, the American commander, reported to the Navy Department that the Japanese in Nanking were completing their evacuation, that missing British marines were coming out of the city.

On Firing Line

SHELLED CHINESE

HOUGH'S REPORT

The admiral's report, dated at 5:30 p. m., Nanking time, time, said:

"As a result of the strong stand taken today by the forces here the foreigners are beginning to come out of the city.

The American destroyer William B. Preston, while escorting the refugee boat Kungwo from Nanking to a point below Kiangwan, was fired upon from Nanking points. The fire was returned by the destroyer's machine guns.

Chinese forts above and below Chinkiang also fired on the Preston and the destroyer again replied by turning loose its four-inch battery. No casualties to the Preston's personnel resulted.

Admiral Williams reported having authorized Admiral Hough to "use his own judgment" in Nanking and adding:

MILITARY AREA

"American, British and Japanese commanders-in-chief agree that if possible further drastic action should be avoided until Gen. Chian Kai Shek, Cantonese war lord, has been given an opportunity to fulfill his guarantee to provide adequate protection to all foreigners."

Japanese naval craft at Nanking had landed a detachment of 50 men under cover. The situation along the Yangtse River was described by Admiral Williams as tense.

Two hundred and fifty American missionaries had sailed from Hankow for Shanghai and other steamers are being held in readiness at Hankow to evacuate the remaining Americans, if necessary. A heavy movement of Chinese nationalist forces across the river from Hankow was reported.

American refugees comprising 19 men, 37 women and 52 children had sailed from Nanking for Shanghai on the steamers Kungwo and Wenchow early today.

HOUGH'S REPORT

In forwarding Admiral Hough's report about the coming of Chiang, which was made prior to the delivery of the ultimatum, Admiral Williams said:

"Chiang's request as communicated to me by the British vice admiral appears to have been that no further warlike measures be undertaken until he arrives at Nanking and has an opportunity to establish order and obtain the release of the foreigners."

Admiral Williams said he had held a conference with the British vice-admiral and the Japanese rear admiral on board the cruiser Pittsburgh and that they had sent to their subordinates at Nanking messages identical with the dispatch he had forwarded Admiral Hough which advised that drastic action be avoided until Chiang reached Nanking.

Admiral Officially Reports Wanton Attacks on Women

Washington, March 25 (A.P.)—Brutal mistreatment of many Americans, including women, at Nanking was officially reported to the Navy Department today by Admiral Williams, who forwarded this report made to him by Rear-Admiral Hough at Nanking:

"At Nanking so far as is known, all American missions and homes have been looted.

"The following American property is known to have been burned down: Olagacal Seminary, Hillcrest School and residences of Hucheson and H. J. Mills."

"Most of the American consulate looted or wantonly destroyed by the Nationalist soldiers in uniform.

"Many Americans, including women, were treated with the greatest brutality by soldiers in the Nationalist uniform who tore off the clothing and otherwise maltreated them.

"Practically all of the outrages were committed by soldiers in the Nationalist uniform and one instance was reported the pistoling of a French priest by a Cantonese officer."

Bitter Fighting in Hankow And Other War Zone Cities

Shanghai, China, March 25 (A.P.). Dr. E. J. Williams of Shawnee, O., vice-president of Nanking University, is known to be among the dead from yesterday's shelling.

All Americans and Britishers in Chinkiang, which was captured by the Nationalists several days ago, have been evacuated on steamers, or are congregated on the waterfront under the protection of destroyers.

All American women and children have been evacuated from Hankow.

The British steamer Weuchow stopped at Chinkiang today to take off twenty American missionaries.

Widespread looting of foreign houses is going on in Chinkiang.

FIGHTING AT HANKOW

At Hankow and elsewhere, according to reports reaching here, fighting is going on between moderate Chinese Nationalists and Red extremists.

Three hundred agitators, among them foreigners, are said to have reached Hankow from Canton and are on the way toward Shanghai.

Although the tragic events at Nanking have overshadowed the Shanghai situation, it is still causing foreign authorities much anxiety and the defense cordon was being strengthened today. Sandbags and breastworks were placed at vulnerable points.

Attempts by the southern forces to clean up the native district of Chapel were only partly successful. Hand-to-hand struggles between Cantonese regulars and armed civilians continue and there has been looting by the Cantonese.

One party of Southerners broke into the Roman Catholic Church and decapitated the statues and hurled them into Soochow creek.

Britain Holds Cantonese Responsible for Killings

London, March 25 (A.P.)—The British government is anxiously seeking the full story of the events at Nanking.

The death of Dr. Smith, an Englishman, and the wounding of British Consul Giles were confirmed.

The British Government holds the Cantonese authorities fully responsible, in consequence of which new difficulties have been put in the way of carrying out the British policy of conciliation in China.

It was reiterated that the government will go to the limit in supporting its civil and military representatives in whatever measures are necessary to restore order and protect life in the foreign communities.

Woman Missionary From Worcester Safe on Liner

Worcester, March 25 (A.P.)—Miss Emma M. Halm, a Methodist missionary who was assigned four years ago to the Methodist Hospital in Sienyu, near Foochow, China, is among those of the American missionaries safely aboard the U. S. Fulda of the German Lloyd line bound for Hamburg, according to a message received from her today by Mrs. Axel Erickson of this city.

Miss Halm states that "since the Cantonese came into control of the province of Fukien in November there has been constant agitation against foreigners."

HUB RAILROADS IN PLEA FOR COAL RATE CUT

Reduction of anthracite coal rates from the pit to the switching area of Great Boston is sought by the Boston & Albany, New Haven and Boston & Maine Railroads at a hearing begun in the Federal Building today before Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner McGrath.

Four years ago a similar petition was refused and the rate was boosted from $4.16 a car ton to $4.79. The railroads assert an increase will abolish fair competition between rail and water carriers and wipe out the business of small coal dealers.

Worcester Woman Safe

Worcester, March 25 (A.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Aldrich, No. 27 King street, received a cablegram today from their daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Gibbs, who, with her husband, Dr. Gibbs, has been teaching at the Union College in Nanking, that with other refugees she is aboard an American gunboat.

CAPTAIN AND DECKHAND DROWNED AT NEW LONDON

New London, Conn., March 25 (A. P.)—Captain S. Nelson French, 65, and deckhand James Lankton, 35, both of the Thames Towboat Company's barge Edith, were drowned here when the dory in which they were rowing to the Edith capsized within 200 feet of shore. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

'Free 155 or We Fire!' U. S. Defi to China

WASHINGTON, March 25 (A.P.).—Report by Admiral Hough to Admiral Williams, forwarded to the Navy Department, said the attempted negotiations with Chinese authorities at Nanking had proved unsuccessful.

The Admiral said the local Chinese commander at Nanking had been notified that:

"First, we demand that a general of division command rank shall come on board prior to noon today and arrange for proper treatment of wounded foreigners ashore.

"Second, that if this demand be not complied with, Chiang's request cannot be guaranteed and we shall take such action as may be deemed necessary. It may be deemed necessary to fire upon barracks on salient military points in order to obtain the release of Americans remaining alive on shore, approximately 155."

SALVATION ARMY MAN RAISED TO HIGHEST RANK

Holyoke, March 25 (A.P.)—Commandant Edward J. Atkinson of the Salvation Army Corps today received word of his promotion to the rank of field major, the highest office in the evangelical field. The appointment comes from Commissioner R. E. Holz of the New York territory.

Commandant and Mrs. Atkinson are both members of the Salvation Army, with long service in the order, having served many years in England.

TWO YOUTHS HELD ON CHARGE OF ROBBERY

Two South Boston youths, Edward S. Richardson, 19, and Egbert A. Elliot, 20, both of East Third street, were held for Superior Court in $5,000 bail each in South Boston Court today after probable cause had been found in a charge of robbery. It is alleged the boys entered the room of Hughes J. Delaney, and demanded money. Delaney, believing the youths were armed, turned over $31 in cash and a $50 gold watch, the police say.

CHINESE SLAY FATHER OF 2 HUB GIRLS

First casualty reports from the fighting at Nanking, China, struck a double blow at Boston and Wellesley College today. Rev. John E. Williams, killed, according to cable advices, in a Nanking skirmish, was the father of two local girls one a Boston art teacher and the other a student at Wellesley College.

DOROTHY WILLIAMS

Dorothy Williams, youngest daughter of the slain Presbyterian missionary, is a senior at Wellesley, due to graduate in June. Her sister, Mary, was graduated from the college with the class of '24, and was last year an assistant in the art department there. She is teaching a class at the Boston Art Museum.

A third daughter, Faith, is connected with the Y. M. C. A. at Nanking. The slain missionary's wife was with him when last news of her came out of China. Several weeks ago Rev. Mr. Williams was transferred from Shanghai to Nanking, but it is not known whether his wife and daughter accompanied him.

Rev. Mr. Williams was a native of Ohio and left the Presbyterian ministry in New Lexington, O., 20 years ago to enter the missionary field.

Nine More U. S. Warships Are Dispatched to China

Washington, March 25 (A.P.).—Within the last twenty-four hours nine American warships have been dispatched to Chinese waters to augment the squadron of twenty-one fighting craft now there.

The light cruisers Richmond, Marblehead and Cincinnati are sailing from Honolulu and are expected to take about eight days to make the trip. Each carries 230 men and thirty-eight officers, two airplanes, twelve six-inch guns and four three-inch anti-aircraft guns.

The others, all destroyers, are en route from Manila and will arrive off the China coast in three days.

The destroyers are the Peary, Ford, Pillsbury, Edsall, Parrott and Bulmer. Each is listed in the Navy Department register as carrying a normal complement of 104 men, ten petty officers and eight wardroom officers. This complement, however, may have been increased slightly in view of the existing situation.

All of the destroyers carry four-inch guns and one three-inch gun as well as torpedo tubes and anti-aircraft weapons.

The twenty-one American fighting craft now in the China zone carry 2,718 bluejackets and about 2,000 rines landed at Shanghai and now under command of Brigadier-General Smedley Butler, who reached that city last night.

Naval Secretary Wilbur said that Admiral C. S. Williams, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, has full authorization to use all forces under his command at his direction.

Later Secretary of State Kellogg, after going over the developments in China with President Coolidge, reiterated that the State Department was prepared to back the navy in what it did.

Fate of 52 Protestant China Missionaries Unknown

New York, March 25 (I.N.S.).—No word of any deaths or injuries among the 52 missionaries of 400 persons in Nanking, China, had been received today in the headquarters of the three Protestant mission boards.

Presbyterian missionaries in Nanking listed by the Presbyterian board include: Saumel J. Mills, Wallingford, Conn.; Mrs. Samuel J. Mills, Haverford, Pa.; Evelyn W. Walmsley, Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Lawrence Thurston, Hartford, Conn.

The American Baptist Foreign Mission Society announced the following representatives in Nanking: Prof. C. S. Gibbs, Maine; Mrs. C. S. Gibbs, Massachusetts, and H. D. Lamson.

The board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church listed the following in Nanking: Rev. and Mrs. Duncan F. Dodd, Niantic, Conn., and Rev. and Mrs. Lyman D. Hale, Roslindale, Mass.

Rev. Lyman L. Hale of the Methodist missionary district, reported safe in Nankin, is well known in Boston, having been pastor successively of City Point Methodist Church, Appleton M. E. Church, Neponset, and Bethany, Roslindale.

General Chang Kai Scheck assisted Comrade Borodin, Soviet instigator in China, at a recent demonstration at Hankow.

WOUNDED GIRL AMONG THOSE RESCUED

Shanghai, China, March 25 (A.P.)—The first of the 120 American missionaries who took refuge in Nanking University from the rioting Chinese began to arrive at the dock near the American and British warships at 7 o'clock tonight.

Among them was Miss Moffatt, who had been shot twice through the body.

The missionaries came through without military escort. It was not known whether the entire 120 were coming out.

(Anna E. Moffatt of Fort Sherman, Ill., was among the workers at the Nanking station of the Presbyterian mission workers.)

American women in Nanking are reported to have been most brutally treated by the Chinese. It is believed a majority of the American homes and mission properties there were destroyed by Cantonese soldiers.

Bertram Giles, the British Consul-General at Nanking, who was wounded in yesterday's fighting, has been rescued and is aboard the British cruiser Emerald.

Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, who arrived today to take command of the American Marines, told the newspapermen that there was no immediate question of the marines taking over from the British a portion of the defence line around the international settlement.

He received the correspondents after conferring with the American commander, Rear Admiral Williams, and the British military commander, Major-General John Duncan.

Consul Davis Tells of Missionary Slaying

Washington, March 25 (A.P.).—The murder of one American missionary and attempts to slay many others at Nanking was described in the report of American Consul John K. Davis, which was received today at the Navy Department.

The report, forwarded by Admiral Williams, American Asiatic fleet commander, told of the escape of Mr. Davis with "one officer, eleven sailors, nine civilians and two children." The rescue of Mr. Davis was reported yesterday by Admiral Williams.

"On March 24 about noon after both the Japanese and British consulates had been attacked and the consuls reported killed and after the known cold-blooded murder of one American missionary and the attempted murder of many others, all by Nationalist soldiers, the Chinese police informed me that we would be destroyed unless we could escape," Consul Davis said.

"Accordingly, our party of one officer, eleven sailors, nine civilians and two children escaped under constant fire across the country to the Socony houses on Standard Oil Hill just above the city wall, which are visible from the river and where many Americans and British already were.

"Although repeatedly robbed and threatened by Nationalist soldiers, my vice-consul (J. Hall Paxton of Danville, Va.) and the Socony manager managed to keep them out of the house for two hours, but they finally broke in and seeing our numbers they retired and commenced firing at us in ever increasing numbers.

TONG PANIC IN CHINATOWN; 8 DEAD IN WAR

The panic that seized Boston's Chinatown when news of the outbreak of a new Tong war was first received here keeps growing as messages of warning filter in from other cities. These messages are addressed to individuals and come from friends in other parts of the country.

The recipients of these messages fear they are marked for death and their terror is abject.

Such a message was received today by Chung Lip, who conducts a small laundry at No. 1432½ Washington street. The message came from a friend, Yee Gow of Schenectady, and the laundryman was urged to take every precaution to save his life. He was also warned not to open his shop so early in the day and to close it earlier in the evening.

Chung Lip, badly frightened, is heeding the warning. There is a long, deep room, just back of his shop, and he lurks in this room throughout the day. Anyone entering the shop is first inspected from the depths of this room before the laundryman puts in his appearance in the front shop.

The Tong war has already resulted in eight killings throughout the country.

By the underground system that few white men know, the local Chinese receive word of the killings in distant cities even more quickly than do the police themselves, and outside almost every door in Chinatown a Chinese guard is stationed, while almost every Chinaman carries a weapon of some kind.

Barking guns that marked the end of a two-year truce between the Hip Sing and the On Leong Tongs yesterday brought death to three Chinese in Chicago, two in Brooklyn, one in Newark, one in Pittsburgh, and one in Manchester, Ct.

The Boston district is rife with the rumor of the advent of a number of hatchetmen and gunmen here from New York, and though extra police are stationed at the North and South Terminals, and at different roads leading into Boston, the local Chinese are still afraid that some of the desperate Tongmen may run the blockade.

A young Chinese Harvard student, whose father is an influential merchant in Boston's Chinatown, is authority for the statement that the invasion of the hatchetmen is no figment of the imagination, and that his brothers of the On Leon Tong, the Tong which practically controls Boston's Chinatown, has real fear of the Hip Sings.

New York Threatens to Oust Chinese by the Shipload

New York, M h 25 (A.P.).—Facing a threat of deportation to their war-torn native country, Chinese chieftains gathered for a peace conference today in an effort to end a renewal of Tong warfare that has already taken eight lives in five American cities.

"Back to China by the shipload, if necessary," was the ultimatum issued by District Attorney Banton as he called metropolitan leaders of the rival Hip Sing and On Leong Tongs into conference. The Chinese Consul-General also was invited to attend.

Characteristic Oriental silence handicapped the police in their hunt for the killers, although 45 men were arrested. The police said Chinese gunmen are paid $2,000 per killing by the rival Tongs.

If Tong warfare continues in Manhattan, District Attorney Banton said today, he will ask the Federal government to interfere and report those responsible for the outbreak. "If they can't confine their war to China," he added, "at least they can keep it out of New York."

In Chicago, where the first death occurred in the Tong outbreak, two additional Chinese died from bullet wounds and another was in a serious condition as a consequence of an attack attributed to the On Leongs in vengeance for the killing of Chin Poch.

DEAF ENABLED TO "HEAR" THROUGH FINGER TIPS

Philadelphia, March 25 (A.P.).—An instrument that will enable the deaf to "hear" by means of vibrations received through the fingertips has just been perfected by Dr. Robert H. Gault, director of the Vibro-Tactile laboratory of Smith College. He has been working on it for four years in collaboration with the National Research Council.

The principle of the vibrating diaphragm is used, Dr. Gault explained. The sound is transferred through an ordinary microphone and filtered into four "teleactors" in which the fingers of the hand are placed.

"The fingers pick up the vibrations and discriminate between 'heavy' tones and 'light' tones, which are vowels," he said. "The student learns to distinguish the difference in weight of the tones and thus picks up the trend of conversation."

30 FILIPINO TRIBESMEN KILLED; LEADER WOUNDED

Manila, March 25 (A.P.).—A dispatch to La Vanguardia from Cotobato today said 30 rebellious Alangkat tribesmen had been killed and many wounded by the Philippine constabulary near Vintangan, a remote section of Cotobato subco, fanatic religious leader. The province.

The injured included Datu Mapurfighting, which took place Monday, broke up a long standing uprising in which hundreds of tribesmen followed Mapurco, looting and ravaging the country.

WE STUFF OUR HOBOES ON PIE, YALE MAN FINDS

Hartford, Conn., March 25 (A.P.).—Gullible American housewives give the hobo "too much pie and cake, far more than they want, and the roadsides of the country are lined with discarded pastry," a local club was told by Professor William B. Bailey, formerly of the Yale Economics faculty.

Professor Bailey kept a tramp lodging house in New Haven for ten years while on the Yale faculty, and has made a thorough study of the hobo.

Money and food are not hard for a hobo to obtain, said Professor Bailey. He averages four "putouts" and one "setout" a day—a putout being defined as food handed out the door, while a setout is a meal eaten at a table. The tramp's great difficulty is getting a sleeping place.

"What a tramp likes is two large, thick slices of bread, one smeared with butter, and a huge slab of meat between. That is what he likes—and he usually manages to get it," said Professor Bailey.

MISSIONARIES FROM BOSTON ARE SAFE

Boston missionaries in Shanghai and Nanking, China, were reported to be safe at the mission headquarters of the Congregational Trinitarians Beacon street, today.

Elizabeth Cushman

Albert G. Moody, East Northfield, received a cable from his daughter in Nanking with word that she, Mrs. Esther Moody Loos, her baby and husband, were moved on.

Mrs. Loos is a Wellesley graduate and went to China in 1922. She married in 1924 and is now the wife of the treasurer of Ginling College in Nanking, with which institution she, too, was affiliated.

Rev. and Mrs. Frank Rawlinson, who went to China in 1902, are now stationed in Shanghai, where the doctor is editor of the Chinese Recorder, a Christian monthly magazine. They were thought to be safe.

Miss Elizabeth Cushman of Pawtucket, R. I., teaching at the Wen Shan school for girls and who, during the Foochow looting, was in jeopardy, cabled she was safe.

Boston Baptist missionaries have not been heard from as yet, the Boston office reported. Miss Carrie M. Shurtleff of Tremont Temple, who in 1921 was sent to China by the Baptist Foreign Mission, was a nurse at Yachow in West China.

Full Army Division at Philippines Ready for China

Washington, March 25.—A full division of troops in the Philippines will be moved to China if necessary. Under treaty with China the United States is required to use only naval forces, but officials today declared the treaties are now little more than scraps of paper and that any suitable action will be taken to protect American lives and property, and explanations made afterward.

There are upward of 12,000 men in the division and they can be moved to Shanghai within five days.

Many Chinese Shot in Bombardment of Ship

Shanghai, China, March 25 (A.P.).—Many casualties among Chinese passengers on the Indo-China Company's steamer Pingwo are reported to have occurred when the vessel was fired upon from the banks of the Yangtse ninety miles above Shanghai. The British gunboat Cricket is proceeding to the rescue of the wounded.

BAUER OF LYNN CALLS HALT ON LOTTERIES

Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn today declared war on lotteries games of chance and "raffles" conducted by societies, churches or individuals. He ordered a halt on the sale of chances on the $22,000 former home of the local Aerie of Eagles.

He also ordered that all tickets sold by the Eagles be called in and the money refunded, stating that a city ordinance was violated. President Peter Quirk of the lodge announced that he would not comply unless instructed to do so by his superiors in the fraternal organization as he had legal advice that the sale was within the law.

"I am tired of seeing the people of Lynn 'bamboozled,'" wrote Mayor Bauer in his letter, which was addressed to William Fitzpatrick, chairman of the grand concert ball committee of the Aerie.

The drawing for the old Eagles' home, situated in North Common street, is scheduled to take place at the ball, April 11. Tickets have been sold at $1 apiece and the winner may take $15,000 instead of the building, which the Eagles left for a new home a year ago.

GOVERNOR AND MAYOR TO BE GUESTS ABOARD SHIP

Governor Fuller, Mayor Nichols and other dignitaries will be luncheon guests aboard the Hamburg-American liner Cleveland here tonight. Captain Conrad Luck, who will give the "appreciation party" aboard the ship in return for his reception here two weeks ago, when the Cleveland resumed service, radioed that he would arrive at Commonwealth Pier in time for the "Luncheon," which was arranged for 5. The ship was delayed en route here from New York by a gale off the Cape. Many Bostonians, including Mrs. R. C. Forbes of Milton and her daughter, Miss Pauline Forbes and Miss Edith M. Webster; Mrs. Mary Roman of Boston, Frederic Winthrop and his daughter, Dorothy Winthrop, of Beacon Hill, and Miss May A. Frye, are booked to sail for Queenstown, Cherbourg and Hamburg.

U. S. to Hold Cantonese to 'Strict Accountability'

Washington, March 25 (I.N.S.).—Unlimited backing for Admirals Williams and Hough, who are on the spot in China, and strict accountability from the Chinese Nationalist government for the killing of Americans and destruction of their property.

This was written as the administration's policy in today's Cabinet meeting, which devoted nearly two hours to consideration of the critical situation prevailing in Shanghai and Nanking.

The two American admirals have been given the widest discretion possible, and they will be backed to the limit, members of the Cabinet said after the meeting. At the same time, it was made clear at the State Department that the Cantonese will be held strictly to account for the action of their nationals.

Protests will be made, as a matter of course, to both the Pekin government and to the unrecognized Cantonese government. For the time being, about all that Washington can do is to give Admiral Williams all the ships and men he wants, and await the emergence of order out of the present chaos.

SANITY EXPERTS AID FIGHT TO FREE HEIRESS

Continuing the fight to bring about the release from McLean Insane Asylum in Waverley of Elsie [illegible] gin-toting heiress, Mrs. Anna Parsons, the girl's mother, today instructed her attorney F. Paul Welsh to engage the best brain specialists to represent her family in a test of the girl's sanity.

"It was a terrible mistake to send my girl to the insane asylum," said Mrs. Parsons. "I am convinced from what I have learned that attempts were made to have her committed for [illegible] without consulting me or any members of the family.

"We know what is best for her but we have been kept in the dark. We did not know of her entrance to the Psychopathic Hospital or her confinement in McLean until we read of it in the newspapers.

"I am certain that her sanity can be proved and I shall engage the best [illegible] to prove it."

Reading Fire Chief Hurt

Chief Ordway of the Reading Fire Department and Engineman Charles Hesselton were injured today when a new fire engine, answering an alarm, crashed into a truck in Reading square.

COURT FREES CHIEF OF FOUR RUM CHARGES

White River Junction, Vt., March 25 (A.P.)—Judge [illegible] directed a verdict of not guilty on four of the seven charges against Police Chief Charles W. [illegible] of Hartford before giving the case to the jury.

The State nol prossed another so that there remained for jury decision only the charge that he furnished Charles L. [illegible], cashier of the First National Bank here, with liquor and that he possessed one gallon of a lot of 30 gallons to be dealt [illegible].

On the first of these charges the jury was instructed that they must decide whether the offense was committed more than three years before the arrest as was contended by the defense. This would bar prosecution.

The directed verdicts of not guilty applied to the charges of furnishing liquor to Rev. George H. [illegible], pastor of the Federated Church of Wilder, Judge Arthur G. [illegible] of the [illegible] Court and Selectman G. W. [illegible] of Hartford and of possession of a lot of [illegible] taken from an auto [illegible] party. P. A. W[illegible] of Woodstock, was named foreman of the jury.

W. M. PARKER, BANKER, DIES

Manchester, N. H., March 25 (A.P.)—Walter M. Parker, president of the Manchester National Bank and one of the wealthiest men in New Hampshire, died early today. He was in his 77th year. He was a director of the Boston & Maine Railroad and vice president of the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company.

After being graduated from Dartmouth College in 1871 he entered the employ of the Manchester National Bank [illegible] subsequently succeeding his father as president upon the latter's death in 1884. He [illegible] James [illegible] Mass. Rev. [illegible]

U.S. WOMEN SAFE ON WARSHIP

New York, March 25 (A.P.)—A cablegram to the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society today announced that three women missionaries, who have been [illegible] in Nanking, were safe aboard a warship in the Yangtse River. They were Mrs. Marion Fisher Keen of Center Hall, Pa.; Mrs. Myrtle Aldrich Gibbs of Franklin, Mass., and Mrs. H. D. Lamson of Philadelphia.

ATTACK SHARP IN SALE OF HAMILTON MILLS

Charges that Arthur R. Sharp, treasurer of the Hamilton Manufacturing Company of Lowell, was the moving spirit back of the effort of Marden & Murphy of Lowell to purchase the plant for $700,000 was made before the full bench of the Supreme Court today. Exceptions to Judge Morton's decree authorizing the sale of the property to Marden & Murphy were being argued for the minority stockholders.

Attorney Richard C. Everts, representing the minority, declared the most serious question involved was that of releasing Mr. Sharp from liability to stockholders for his management of the company's affairs. Howard W. Brown, for the receivers, contended there was no error of law arising from Judge Morton's decree.

TO GIVE CHELSEA MAYOR $2,000 TO ADD TO SALARY

Chelsea business men today had collected $1,100 of the $2,000 the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce will present to Mayor John J. Whalen to augment his $1,500 salary for this year.

The gift will be made because the business men sponsored a bill to increase the Chelsea Mayor's salary from $1,500 to $ .500 will not go before the Chelsea voters until next Fall and therefore the expected favorable vote on the bill will not help this year's emolument.

Woman Dies of Burns

Mrs. Joseph Graboski, 48, of Chestnut street, Chelsea, died today at the Chelsea Memorial Hospital from burns received on March 15, when a can of rubber cement exploded in her kitchen closet, igniting her clothing.

Mum for a Life

Rather than lie, even to save her mother's life, Johanna Heilman remained silent at the trial in Chicago of the woman for killing her husband.

STATE WILL NOT STOP PHONE 'TAPPING'

The New England Telephone & Telegraph Company can listen in on subscribers' wires and listen to wire conversations with impunity and without fear of intervention of the Public Utilities Commission, it was revealed today.

[illegible] Joseph McGrath of Dorchester, chairman of the Committee on Counties, [illegible] read to members of the [illegible] a letter from Chairman Henry C. Attwill of the Public Service Commission in which Mr. Attwill said the commission never ordered the telephone company to discontinue wire tapping activities and had no intention of doing so.

The letter said that to enforce such a ruling the Public Service Commission would have to employ a small army of inspectors and even could not be sure it was preventing wire tapping as telephone conversations [illegible] persons [illegible]

Joseph [illegible] conversations [illegible] home [illegible] in response to an inquiry as to what the Public Service Commission had done in the matter.

"Blue Blood Pedlar" Loses Suit to Red Blooded Woman

Red blood scored a victory over blue in Cambridge Probate Court today when Judge Arthur P. Beane granted a separate support order to Mrs. Mildred H. Elliott. The couple could not get along, according to the wife, because her husband continually nagged her that her lineage was very inferior to his own.

The husband is Robert Raymond Elliott, Harvard graduate and son of a New York clergyman. The wife sued on the grounds of desertion following the dismissal of two previous petitions.

Mrs. Elliott claimed her husband was unable to make good in any line of endeavor save peddling of pots and pans. She said her husband constantly kept reminding her that her ancestors were nobodies, but she contended he could not truthfully claim relationship with the noted Elliotts of Boston and Cambridge.

Judge Beane gave Mrs. Elliott the custody of the two-year-old son of the couple.

NEW ENGLAND BOOSTERS ARE APPEALED TO

"I appeal to you all to boost New England," said Frank J. Fahey, vice-president and general manager of [illegible] to [illegible] members of the Advertising Club of Boston after they had made a tour of the factory in South Boston where more than 2,000,000 razor blades are manufactured daily, as well as 2,000 razors.

"I believe there has been no time in the history of New England when it needed common sense boosting as much as it needs it today," continued Mr. Fahey. "New England needs to have its industries known to the world. Many New England manufacturers have been getting 'cold feet' and [illegible] when [illegible] the markets of the world [illegible] to New England [illegible]

NEW ENGLAND NOT SLIPPING

"New England was built upon such a [illegible]. In the old days it was famous for its [illegible] trade. You all should join in calling the attention of the entire country and world to New England and its products.

"Our $5,000,000 industry should have some little claim on your consideration, but I am appealing for your help in boosting New England generally."

Ralph F. Thompson, [illegible] of [illegible] who [illegible] manufacturing, spoke along similar lines. He said:

"New England is talking too much about things going sour in this section of the country. It should talk more about the things that are going [illegible]. It may be true that some industries are going back, but there are [illegible] more that are going ahead with [illegible] strides. New England is not slipping as some people seem to believe. Statistics prove that conclusively."

TESTING ROOM INTERESTING.

Members of the club were vitally interested by the marvelous automatic machines which turn out so many blades and handles daily. They were especially impressed with the manner in which 300 girls in the final inspection room tested the edges of razor blades with human hair.

5 POLICE HUNT 'THE GRABBER'

Five policemen in plain clothes were assigned by Chief Charles [illegible] of Chelsea today to round up "Mag" the Grabber," a woman whose specialty is pulling girls from parked automobiles in Chelsea, [illegible] say.

Fifteen complaints were received by the chief from girls ranging in ages from 17 to 30 today. Almost as many complaints were received yesterday. In every case the attack made the woman was the same.

The woman has a young daughter whose penchant is staying out, police charge. The mother starts out at midnight each night looking for her daughter. She visits only parked automobiles in which couples are spooning and in each case after cautiously approaching the machine, she reaches inside and drags the frightened girl from the car, it is claimed.

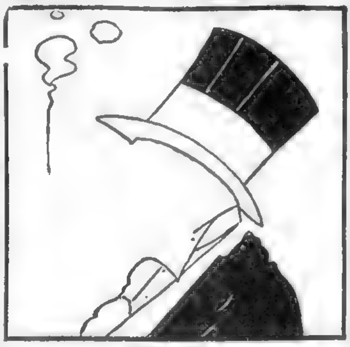
DRAW JIGGS' FACE AND WIN SHOW SEATS



JIGGS HIMSELF

CAN YOU DRAW—Then get [illegible] Jiggs' face and win yourself a whole boxful of seats for next Thursday night's performance of "Bringing Up Father" at Waldron's Casino. The Boston Evening American feels that there is no better known face in the comics than that of George McManus' lovable and scrappy Jiggs, who appears daily on the comic page of this newspaper. And since the big musical burlesque is all about his adventures, it is a good subject for a Boston contest. First prize is an entire box. There will be 50 other seats given away as prizes or lesser awards. The contest closes Tuesday at midnight. Send the completed drawing to the JIGGS PICTURE EDITOR, THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

WALTHAM MAN HELD IN ATTEMPTED KIDNAPING

Simon A. Cormier, a 56-year-old [illegible] of [illegible] street, Waltham, was arraigned in Waltham district court today with being one of two men who endeavored to kidnap Mrs. Kathleen Van Geert, 20, of Lawton [illegible], Waltham.

According to Mrs. Van Geert, two men came to her home about midnight Saturday and endeavored to force her into an automobile. Neighbors saw the machine and gave the registration numbers to the police and Cormier's arrest followed. He was identified by Mrs. Van Geert as one of her assailants and was arraigned today on the charge of assault and battery. The case was continued until March 31.

"We went to an all-night restaurant toward morning and had so many orders of pancakes that all the taxi drivers in the place stared at us."

The GIRL who was TWO PERSONS

By day Helen Atchison was a demure student in New York's largest college.

At night she sought romantic adventure in the colorful haunts of the great city, dancing until the dawn, delving deep into the mysteries of the modern Bagdad.

Of course they called her wild—but was she? Read the daring, breathless novel of the girl "who wanted to find out" in April McClure's.

"WILD"

The author, Carol Denny Hill, is herself barely out of her 'teens and if you want excitement, love, swiftly-moving adventure, you'll thrill to every word of this gripping, pulsing story.

Take part in the $200 Prize Contest for letters based on this story—see April McClure's for details. "Wild" is only one of the 20 vital romances you'll find in April McClure's. Think of it, 20 inspired stories, romantic, vital, absorbing for a mere quarter.

Each month Louella O. Parsons, noted movie critic, contributes to McClure's a sprightly inside story about movie stars and how they got that way. Whatever you do, don't miss her this month.

The Hollywood Girl

by BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "The Love Wrecker"

Adventures of a Girl From New England in the Movie Colony

A girl with coppery hair raised a pair of enormous green eyes as Bobbie sat down opposite her.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

One of the extra girls, a silly little plump thing, was talking in a hushed voice. Every now and then she threw a sidelong glance at Gus MacCloud from enormous black eyes.

"Of course he's years and years older than I am," she was saying when Bobbie joined the group, "but I've known who he is all my life. His folks live back East, where I come from, and they have scads and oodles of money. There's [illegible] and he's the only son [illegible] and she [illegible] to stay at home and tend to the business. But he wouldn't [illegible]." She broke off sharply as Gus came toward them and told them to go out to the end of the lot where Roy Schultz was waiting for them in a garden "set."

"You go too, Miss Ransom," he added in an offhand way to Bobbie, as if they barely knew each other.

Then he turned and walked away, whistling.

Bobbie stared after him with puzzled eyes. She never could make him out. She never knew where she stood with him. Sometimes, like the night in [illegible]'s flat he was wildly in love with her, it seemed. Then she wouldn't hear from him for days, and when she did see him he scarcely noticed her.

"I wish I could figure you out, Gus MacCloud," she said silently to his retreating figure.

She sighed and went out into the sunshine where Roy Schultz was waiting. A garden had been laid out.

Red brick walls enclosed it. In the centre was a swimming pool, and six or seven girls were swimming around in it. Other girls in wide garden hats and light dresses were sitting at rustic tables with some of the extra men.

Roy Schultz, with his cap on the back of his head and a megaphone hanging from each of his hands, lolled in a canvas chair, singing out orders to everybody.

"All right, Miss Ransom, I've got a flapperish stunt for you to do today. Can you flap for me?" he asked Bobbie with a grin, when he caught sight of her.

She nodded.

"This scene is supposed to be a wild garden party," he explained, waving both of his megaphones in the air. "You're all supposed to be ginned up and raising Ned generally. Now, what I want you to do is to turn a couple of flip-flops in the pool, take a flat dive or two, and then light a cigarette and swim across the pool smoking it. Think you can do it?"

Bobbie caught her breath in a little gasp. Gus married, and the father of a half-grown girl! She couldn't believe it. But, of course it must be true.

So that was why he kept saying that he never would marry! That

29 Millions in Year for Mills

HUB NAILS LIE ABOUT INDUSTRY

Massachusetts industries during 1926 showed the greatest expansion in recent years, according to a survey completed by the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Almost $29,000,000 was expended by Bay State manufacturers in plant extensions during the year, the survey shows.

The amount expended for plant extension last year was $4,636,100 in excess of expenditures the previous year and $1,0[illegible] greater than that of [illegible]. It exceeded 1923 by $[illegible] and 1922 by $[illegible],722,406.

These significant facts showing the healthy [illegible] growth of Massachusetts and New England are contained in a letter of protest sent George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, by Melvin D. Loring, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

The protest is lodged over the assumption of Maud Parker that Boston and New England are in a state of industrial decay. Miss Parker voices such assumption in an article, "Boston's Past," in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

Mr. Loring's letter bristles with facts and figures that disprove the assumptions of Miss Parker. The letter quotes from a recent speech of Victor M. Cutter, president of the United Fruit Company, in which Mr. Cutter said:

"We may be dead, but our total wealth is more than twenty-five billions. Our textile industry has been through a difficult period, but we have our mills and 1930 will undoubtedly show an increased value in our textile productions.

"A lot of other industries died, but we still have Hood Rubber, United Shoe Machinery, Gillette Safety Razor, United Drug, United Fruit, our many mills and other industries. We may be dead, but if this is true it is strange that we have been able to import many industries in recent years like du Pont, the new Ford plant and others."

Mr. Loring points out that vast enterprises are continually being started in Boston and New England.

"Within a few days," he wrote, "E. M. Statler started his newest hotel in Boston, representing an investment of approximately $[illegible],000,000. Only a week before the Ford company put in operation its second greatest branch plant here.

"Another important new industrial development is the $5,000,000 blast furnace recently completed by the Mystic Iron Works. A sentimental interest in antiques probably was not the leading motive for any of these investments.

ARGONAUT CLUB IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

building, firemen worked valiantly to get the flames under control, while the few employes left in the club after the last pleasure-seeker had gone did their utmost to save some of the most prized of the club's possessions.

The fire started in the fourth floor of the building, probably in the kitchen of the Argonaut Club, which is located on that floor, though the living rooms of the exclusive resort are all on the fifth floor.

Patrolman Fred Gallagher of the Milk street division discovered the blaze, but even as he sounded the alarm the flames shot from the windows of the fourth story and began to eat their way into the fifth floor.

The few employes who were cleaning up the place seized what they could and made their break for safety down the narrow stairway.

The fire had also spread down the stairway to the third floor, where the George Guy Motor Repair shop and the Francis Sipple Belting and Machinery Company were damaged by smoke and water.

The Hesse Machine Company on the second floor, and the P[illegible] [illegible] on the ground floor also were damaged by smoke and water.

GIRL RESCUES MONEY.

When the fire was at its height Miss Sophie A. Koufos of Banks street, Winthrop, employed in the fruit store of C. N. Ar[illegible]tos on the ground floor of the building, dared the flames to rescue her employer's money.

Miss Koufos arrived early to open the store [illegible] commandeered a fireman and with him [illegible] went into the store and emptied the cash register of the receipts.

So [illegible] were the furnishings of the club that neither police nor fire authorities [illegible] the loss, waiting until the officers of the club make their report later today.

A few of the paintings, hung at the unscathed end of the club, escaped harm, but the damage to paintings and general furnishings is estimated at about $[illegible] with damage to the building bringing the total up to $[illegible].

The club was inaugurated by [illegible] C. [illegible], known [illegible] and William A. Gaston Jr., son of the Boston banker and [illegible] the opening of the club a member of District Attorney O'Brien's staff.

Mayor Curley [illegible] as a result of his protest, two city officials, George Alpert and Frank B. Deland, whose names were on the list of incorporators, protested that they were not members of the club, but simply loaned their names to the organizers.

MOSCOW REJOICES wildly in Chinese talk of a world revolution and foresees 140,000,000 Russian Communists joining with 400,000,000 Chinese Communists to "make the whole world Communistic." That is going ahead a little rapidly.

The tail might like to wag the dog, perhaps, but it never does. And Japan, the real Asiatic power, is far from Communism.

IN AMERICA, Chinese seems to have caught the excitement of the Flowery Kingdom. Wars between the Hip Sing and On Leong Tong gentlemen broke loose yesterday in six cities, with six killed and two shot. In America, fortunately, the Chinese are considerate and usually shoot only Chinese.

SEGRAVE, British, beat the world's automobile record yesterday, flying over the sands of Daytona Beach in Florida at a speed greater than 166 miles an hour. His racing car, the "Mystery S.", looking like a submarine on land, broke the American record by ten miles an hour. It's an achievement interesting, but not useful. No automobile can go USEFULLY 166 miles an hour, or 100 miles an hour.

Up in the air, where the road is wide, is the place for real speed.

THE UNITED STATES War Department has sold 3,000 rifles, 200 machine guns, 3,000,000 rounds of ammunition to Nicaragua, and gets $217,718 in notes, bearing 6 per cent. interest, a satisfactory financial arrangement. But suppose some of the 3,000,000 rounds of ammunition accidentally kill women and children, as happens sometimes in South American and other quarrels. How will Uncle Sam feel about that? Couldn't we let our neighbors do their own killing and find the means of doing it?

THREE WOMEN have been executed in New York State. Roxalana Druse, who killed her husband, hanged in 1887. The second, Mrs. Martha Place, smothered her stepchild to death. Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor, refused to interfere. In 1908, Mrs. Mary D. Farmer was electrocuted. Governor Hughes refused a commutation.

NOW NEW YORK may have to decide about executing Mrs. Ruth Snyder, young, blonde, curly-haired widow, aged thirty-two, who recently confessed she helped another man to murder her husband.

She says she now loathes the man that did the killing. He seems to have borrowed a suggestion from his original ancestor, Adam. Friends say he was hypnotized by the woman whose husband he killed.

If human nature, public opinion and the course of events work as usual, the man will be executed and the woman sentenced to life imprisonment. There seems to be a psychological objection to strapping women in the electric chair.

A BLIND SOLDIER, asking the Prince of Wales for a "tip" on the Grand National Steeplechase, to be run today, was told to bet on a horse called Thrown In, at odds of 100 to 1 against that horse. The blind soldier knows, perhaps, by the time you read this, that his bet was a loss.

But he had an exciting time for a while thinking of it. And an exciting time, thinking, is about all human beings get out of life.

ANOTHER young student, aged nineteen, Delbert James, of Detroit, kills himself, leaving this message: "I really don't see the use of hanging around."

Lack of mental interest accounts for many suicides. Nearly forty years ago an evening newspaper discussed the question, "Is Suicide a Sin?" and while the discussion lasted, suicides diminished. That discussion supplied would-be suicides with something worth thinking about. So they waited.

For the first time Gallagher asked Cameron about the policy of the Ford-owned [illegible] towards the "international Jew."

Defense counsel [illegible] were upon their feet with [illegible] Stewart Hanley, the spokesman for the legal [illegible] that Judge Raymond previously had ruled that evidence concerning the "international Jew" was barred.

Gallagher contended that the evidence was admissible under the ruling of the court that evidence concerning "groups" or "classes" of Jews named in the alleged libel, along with testimony relating to individual Jews mentioned in the articles might go in.

The court ruled that while the term "international Jew" was mentioned six or eight times in the introduction to the amended declaration of 86 alleged libels, there was no reference to it as forming a group.

CANZONERI AND TAYLOR READY

Chicago, March 25 (A.P.)—Bud Taylor of Terre Haute and Tony Canzoneri of New York were virtually at the bantamweight limit of 118 pounds today, and ready for their ten-round fight tomorrow night for right to occupy Charley Phil Rosenberg's vacant throne.

In their training, Taylor [illegible] and Canzoneri [illegible] Measurements give Taylor [illegible] of inches advantage in [illegible] reach. But the New Yorker has the heavier shoulders [illegible] hitting powers. Taylor [illegible] Canzoneri 21.

Under similar conditions, the New York board took away his title.

McGill Wins Odd Fall Over Stasiak

Luck deserted Stanley Stasiak at the Grand Opera House. He scored the first fall on Pat McGill, who then downed Stasiak in two straight falls.

Stasiak put McGill on his back after 10 minutes of the roughest sort of wrestling.

Rough work continued in the second bout. Both were out of the ring frequently.

McGill obtained his favorite lift and then whirled Stasiak about for a fall which came at the end of 28 minutes.

The third and deciding toss was gained quickly by McGill.

Joe Malsewicz, claimant of the heavyweight championship, could not do anything in 45 minutes with Alex Gorkawelnke, the Russian.

Yanks Can Hit 'Em | Have Great Pitchers
Fast and Smart in Field | Picked to Win
Huggins Proves Worth

YANKS GREATEST OFFENSIVE TEAM EVER

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25.—Miller Huggins has the most powerful offensive team ever collected in baseball. That's the unanimous opinion of the managers who have steered teams against the Yanks, and all the pitchers who have been picked to try to throw them past the New York bats.

The same identical ball club that was picked to finish last a year ago is now being nominated to win another pennant, even though Connie Mack has spent a million dollars, even though George Moriarity has taken over the powerful Tigers, even though Dan Howley is supposed to be ready to infuse some fire into the potentially mighty St. Louis Browns.

Nick Flatley

And the Yanks are an impressive ball club, offensively. There isn't a weak spot in the batting array until you get right down to the pitcher. Hug has four of the best long distance swatters in the pastime today, Ruth, Meusel, Gehrig and Lazzeri. In addition, he has Koenig, a great natural hitter; Combs, another who can slap them a mile; the dependable Joe Dugan, and a couple of husky base hit gathering catchers.

Those Yanks are fast in the field and smart. They have experienced pitchers. The kids who were fluttery last year—Gehrig, Koenig and Lazzeri—are feeling their oats. They know they're there now, and it's a shame the way they have been hitting good pitching down in the grapefruit and mortgage belt.

Mister Huggins has been criticized and panned, but he certainly knows how to keep a flock of temperamental, high-priced stars going along. He manufactured his own ball club in the teeth of terrific criticism. He won a pennant when it was generally agreed that he didn't have a chance to finish better than seventh.

Hug told us last Spring that he knew he had a chance. This year, if he gets the kind of pitching he expects, he will come through again. Little Miller usually gets what he goes after.

Unicorn Course, Males Paradise, to Open Soon

By STED CHANDLER.

The Unicorn Country Club in Stoneham, the Boston Athletic Association's strictly stag golf course and the only one of its kind in the East, is slated to open officially in a week or two days, although players have been using nine of the eighteen holes with temporary greens for several weeks past.

Sted Chandler

The Unicorn course ranks alone, at least in this section of the country, as a paradise for males. The fair sex has been summarily relegated to the background and the links and clubhouse developed into the [illegible] This [illegible] may have its drawbacks [illegible] speaking [illegible] in the [illegible] it is a sweet [illegible] for men to [illegible] Imagine a golf course wholly void of feminine embellishment. Imagine a clubhouse in which a shirt-tail may be disported without embarrassment. Imagine being able to flub profoundly and curse dramatically with no chance of soprano interruption.

Anyway, the Unicorn Club is a golf course, and its members are enthusiastic over not only the [illegible] but their layout. No radical changes have been made since last year and only one of the eighteen wholly unseeded "sown" greens has showed winterkill and that very [illegible] and easy to remedy.

The Unicorn Club is the child of Henry Lapham, who serves as its president, while the incomparable Francis Ouimet occupies the position of vice-president. Herbert H. Richardson is assistant-treasurer to Charles H. Cross, who carries the dual burden of secretary-treasurer.

The club has also secured the services of a new professional to succeed Jim Laky who is going to Portsmouth, N. H. George Dunn, who has been with the Country Club of Concord, N. H., takes over his new assignment April 1.

There will be no open tournaments at the Unicorn Club this year, but the regular weekly sweepstakes which proved more than popular last Summer, will be resumed.

BRAVES TAKE ON BROWNS

Game With Howley's Pupils Closes Florida Home Campaign of Tribe

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 25—Daniel Howley of Weymouth brought his St. Louis Browns here today to wind up the Florida home campaign of the Braves.

Daniel is one of the new managers, and [illegible] He doesn't [illegible] the fact [illegible] pet [illegible] seventh last season.

BRAVES IN DOLDRUMS.

The Braves are in the Spring doldrums, [illegible] off the last game [illegible] Yankees. [illegible] any of Manager [illegible] would parade away [illegible] game.

Things will be different next year, if Banny is managing and Dick Rudolph doing the right eye stuff. There has been too much competition this Spring, and both of the directors know it. They have had to play with the best material they had at hand, and they never could grab an opportunity to experiment much.

There [illegible] here, [illegible] who has more speed than a couple of [illegible] and inexperienced [illegible] been in a big game. [illegible]

The Browns today are likely to have their troubles with the tribal umpire, Frank Wilson. Frank does not like the American League. He has tossed 36 players and managers out of ball parks down here this Spring. He has ruined the competitive element of most of the inter-league pastimes.

LOSE INTEREST.

The last game with the Yanks was a wild, free hitting affair. The Braves won it, but they were lucky at that. There was so much interruption while Wilson was ejecting athletes that pitchers cooled off and [illegible] grew sore and the [illegible] in the sweater of [illegible].

Our Braves had another dizzy ninth inning, and almost tossed an easy win into the ash can. [illegible] a five run lead [illegible] Yanks were one [illegible] away from [illegible] that score on third with the winning counter just one base back.

That recalled last season so vividly that one began to wonder [illegible] lost interest and [illegible] got their heels off for the [illegible] because they just naturally cannot [illegible] it. If they escort [illegible] Braves Field will be as lonesome as ever next [illegible].

Big Ed Brown busted out a homer, a triple and a single for a day's work, and that was enough to make any Brave rooter cheer.

Foster Edwards [illegible] the Yanks to one hit in four chapters before he blew in the ninth.

After the Browns game today the athletes will [illegible] will be worked gently, and [illegible] the north [illegible].

MAJOR CAVANAUGH BEGINS GRID COACHING DUTIES AT FORDHAM

Major Frank Cavanaugh, former B. C. football mentor and rated as the greatest one-man coach in the game, is hard at work in his new berth at Fordham University, New York City. 'Cav' is shown instructing a group of Maroon candidates in his famous system of grid warfare.

Sharkey Passes Maloney in Battle of Ballots

Jack Sharkey, Brighton heavyweight, [illegible] caught and passed his [illegible] Jim Maloney of [illegible] in the Boston Evening American voting contest which gives the fans an [illegible] to select the winner of the Sharkey-Maloney [illegible] at [illegible] Stadium, New York. [illegible]

Sharkey now leads [illegible] fifteen [illegible] to his credit, while Maloney [illegible] is 11[illegible].

Opinion on the outcome of the heavyweight classic [illegible] evenly divided. [illegible] Sharkey rooter, has this to say about the coming battle:

"This talk of Maloney being the second John L. gives me a laugh. If [illegible] a knockout [illegible] say he is, why didn't he knock [illegible]

"He had plenty of [illegible] advantage and then [illegible] Jack Sharkey [illegible] knockdowns at all. How [illegible]

"Sharkey met and defeated Harry Wills, the man Dempsey and Tunney refused to meet.

"We all know Sharkey K. O.'d Maloney, but was robbed of the decision.

"Sharkey will knock Maloney back to the fish pier, where he belongs."

While the above is the way the coming fight looks to a Sharkey rooter, [illegible] one of Maloney's followers comes through with the following:

"I expect to see Maloney knock Sharkey out not later than the seventh round. Sharkey always looked like a false alarm to me.

"I never picked a loser but once. That time I picked [illegible] to beat [illegible]

"When [illegible] Sharkey [illegible] to beat [illegible] I [illegible] take [illegible] 1[illegible] rounds to beat Maloney."

Who do you think will win the Maloney-Sharkey bout? Clip out the ballot, mark it and send it to the Sporting Editor, Boston Evening American. Do it now.

RUNYON Says—

FROM the time I first saw him, a spindling wisp of a boy, in the amateur bouts at the old Madison Square Garden, I have contended that Sid Terris, the East Side Kangaroo, is a high-class fighter.

I am more than ever convinced that [illegible] is correct since seeing [illegible] fight with Billy Wallace [illegible] Cleveland [illegible] New Madison Square Garden [illegible]

[illegible] a fighter. He made a blazing finish taking a [illegible] of chances against a dangerous puncher. I am firmly convinced that Terris is the best lightweight New York has produced since Benny Leonard.

But [illegible] Terris [illegible] the Kangaroo has never been very popular in his [illegible] town, even among his own [illegible]. A product [illegible] East Side [illegible] you would [illegible] East Side [illegible] disdained Terris and [illegible] Goldstein, who [illegible] their hearts.

Damon Runyon

Sid Terris Worthy Successor to Benny

I AM inclined to think the reason for Terris' lack of popularity and [illegible] among his own people was [illegible] that he wasn't [illegible] the [illegible] fighters of the past [illegible] were [illegible] game.

[illegible] reason the Kangaroo was [illegible] ringside [illegible] you know well that the boys do not pay to see Terris. I grant [illegible] it [illegible] from Terris' [illegible] because a [illegible] for his feet to [illegible]

Now the Kangaroo seems to have settled down to the [illegible] of his feet and is banking and [illegible] punches rather than bouncing away from them, with the result that he [illegible] more of the [illegible] the boys enjoy.

Lightning Speed Takes Edge Off Punch

I AM inclined to the opinion that Terris is just now about the best lightweight in the world. [illegible] Mandell [illegible]

ANOTHER [illegible] New York [illegible] Fingers [illegible] of Los Angeles. [illegible] young [illegible] who was contending [illegible] with Fidel La Barba, [illegible] weight champion of the [illegible] boxing team, will prove a sensation in the East.

Mavis [illegible] paced the floor of her [illegible] restlessly.

Jefferies was due to call at nine [illegible] at the [illegible]

"[illegible] has gone [illegible]," asked Mavis. "[illegible]"

"[illegible]," said Jefferies, removing his coat.

Mavis thought how distinguished he looked in his perfectly cut evening clothes.

"You are peremptory in your invitations, Mavis," said Luke. "A[illegible] would have pleased me better [illegible] consented to dine with me [illegible]"

[illegible] definitely decided to [illegible] ask[illegible]

"If you put it that way," said Jefferies, [illegible] unemotional, "our friendship has been a [illegible] thing. We both of us [illegible] must end and become [illegible] memory. Why not leave it at that?"

"Why must it end?" asked Mavis [illegible]. "You use the term friendship to describe an acquaintance of a week or two. It is too strong a term. If you were [illegible] my friend, things would not end like this between us—but I am not your friend, I'm the instrument you chose to perform a certain thing. Mary Vickers has been released. What further interest can you possibly have in me?"

[illegible] changed suddenly, and [illegible] pleading. She placed one [illegible] hand upon his knee, and [illegible] saw that it trembled.

"[illegible] you leave me Luke?" she [illegible]. "Swear that you won't [illegible] me, and I'll do anything for you. You have made dangerous enemies, but I will save you from [illegible]. I can tell you something [illegible]."

[illegible] and beat with one [illegible] hand upon the [illegible]

"[illegible] thinking of giving up film work," she said [illegible] just now. "I [illegible] that I shall go [illegible] and do what I like."

She crossed over and [illegible] behind [illegible] so that he could not see [illegible].

"Luke," she said. "Come with me, abroad. Give up this mad venture of yours. It will only lead you [illegible] worse danger, perhaps death. What can you get out of it [illegible] dreams that will embitter your life [illegible] with me and taste the [illegible] of life. We can live anywhere [illegible] What else matters but that?"

Her arms crept about his neck and she bent her cheek to his. He removed her arms firmly and stood up.

"You are Not Yourself, Mavis', Declared Jefferies

"This is absolute madness, Mavis," he said resolutely. "You [illegible] immediately [illegible]"

"[illegible]—ne er—[illegible]"

"[illegible]," he repeated [illegible]. Let me say [illegible] all this [illegible]

"You despise me."

"[illegible]"

"You despise and hate me. I can see it [illegible] You think [illegible]"

"[illegible] this discussion or [illegible]"

"[illegible] well," Mavis grew suddenly [illegible]. "We will forget all this and talk of other things. Since you are [illegible] to put an end to [illegible] shall be our last night together."

He looked at her with amazement at her sudden change of [illegible]. For now she was gay, too [illegible] with a [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] might have been some secret [illegible].

"Let us drink to each other's f[illegible]. What [illegible] whisky and [illegible]"

"I [illegible] whisky and soda [illegible] what [illegible]"

"Oh [illegible] sherry here [illegible] for me."

She hummed a little song as she [illegible] to the other side of the room, and with her back towards Jefferies, she prepared their [illegible] beverages.

"Here you are," she cried, offering him one glass and retaining another. "Let us drink to the beautiful Mary Vickers."

Jefferies looked at her sharply but he emptied his glass to the toast.

"Another?" she asked.

He shook his head. "Not just now," he said. His manner was glum and there was a kind [illegible] of [illegible]

Something seemed to [illegible] Mavis [illegible]. She seated herself at the piano, and began to play some mad, passionate thing of Dvorak.

Jefferies leaned back in his chair, and listened, whilst Mavis [illegible] her body swaying slightly to the music, watched him closely. His head began to nod, but as she finished a piece he came to himself with a start, and applauded [illegible]. Mavis went on playing.

Suddenly Jefferies rose to his feet and stood very still, looking at her. He passed a hand across his forehead.

"What's the matter?" he asked thickly. "Stuffy in here."

He paused, and then as his glance fixed on Mavis, she saw comprehension come into his eyes.

"[illegible]," he cried. "Or have you—poisoned me?"

He made a desperate effort and succeeded in getting a foot nearer to her.

"[illegible]" he said with a sneer. [illegible] turned from her [illegible]. [illegible] saw the telephone. By a frightful effort one arm went out [illegible], while the perspiration [illegible] on his forehead. His [illegible] closed on the receiver, and [illegible] away in his hand with a [illegible] flex attached to it.

Jefferies laughed harshly, and [illegible] forward senseless to the ground.

Immediately Mavis ran to the [illegible] man and bent over him with [illegible]. "Luke!" she cried. "Luke!"

The door leading to an inner room opened and Vishnil appeared in the aperture.

"Ah!" he said, softly. "So you have done it, then."

He Prodded Jefferies with a Gold-Headed Cane

He crossed over the unconscious Jefferies and prodded him with a gold-headed cane.

"You have done well," he said to Mavis.

The girl made no answer. She stood staring down at Jefferies with a white face and dawning horror in her eyes.

Vishnil noticed the telephone receiver lying on the floor with the broken flex beside it, and he laughed.

"Luckily it was cut," he commented.

He turned from Jefferies towards the two windows that faced the street. The blinds were down, but he raised one and then the other. After a brief interval he pulled down both blinds again.

The glass that Jefferies had drunk out of attracted his attention. He lifted it from the occasional table upon which it stood, sniffed the dregs that were left in it, and then flung them in the fire, afterwards he rinsed out the glass with water and carefully dried it with a silk pocket handkerchief.

As he finished there came a knock at the outer door.

Two men carrying a stretcher entered. They lifted Jefferies on to the stretcher, strapped him down, and carried him out.

Mavis looked after them with frightened face; then she turned to Vishnil.

"You will remember your promise?" she begged. "He is not to be hurt. Swear to me he will not be hurt."

Vishnil smiled. His dark narrow eyes were pools of cruelty as he answered.

"He will be safe with us. You need not fear. You have saved him from something worse, dear lady."

Ma[illegible] groaned.

"God forgive me, if I have done wrong."

"Be assured He will," said Vishnil, still smiling.

He walked with his neat stride to the door, and turned and gave her an inscrutable look, and a moment later he was descending the steps to the street.

A white motor ambulance was just driving away. A loiterer spoke to Vishnil.

"Looks as though there's been an accident upstairs guv'nor. They just carried down a poor bloke and he lay very still, I can tell yer."

"Distressing," murmured Vishnil. "I did not know there had been an accident. Good evening."

He walked away without a glance at the loiterer, who, left to himself, whistled softly with amazement and uneasiness.

"Vishnil, by Jove" he said. "If that doesn't mean dirty work, my name's not what it is." After which cryptic remark he ran to a telephone booth close by and engaged in some quick-fire conversation.

Beauty Doctor Gives Fine Recipe for the Hands

Many women will undoubtedly be glad to know how they may have beautiful white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret lies in rubbing a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally, preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands as they are really the true marks of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

This recipe is worth keeping.

One Shade
flatters all complexions

Kissproof Rouge is expressly made for the woman of refinement who objects to the obvious. It is so utterly natural one would never know you used a rouge at all.

It Stays On

One application of Kissproof stays on all day—smearproof, rubproof, and windproof. A revelation to women accustomed to the ordinary rouge that requires constant touching up. In paste and compact form. At all the best stores, 75c.

IN a new way, women now are freed of the disadvantages of old-time "sanitary pads." Protection is greater. The old embarrassment of disposal and laundry is avoided.

Get Kotex—8 in 10 better-class women have adopted it.

✓ Discards as easily as tissue. No laundry, no embarrassment.

It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus ends all danger of offending.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

ARE YOU TOO LAZY TO DO YOUR OWN THINKING?

How many of your opinions do you originate?

Do you not rely upon others in reaching your conclusions?

You may study and read, but how much thinking do you do?

Have you become so mentally lazy that you have not the ambition to try to reason out the problems which present themselves? Do you look for the writings of some person on the subject and then express as your own the opinions he advocates or presents?

You find it difficult to think for more than a few moments at a time and give up the task readily.

When it comes to matters where your decision is necessary, because of your habit of letting others think for you, you cannot reach a conclusion by yourself.

You may have been chagrined when the report came to you that you did not exercise discretion in a certain matter. And, on account of this, when a position requiring good judgment is to be filled you are not the one to get it.

The accusation is a fact—isn't it?

It all comes from your disinclination to do hard thinking.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A HERO BY REQUEST

By Louise Peple Armstrong

JOHN [illegible] the [illegible] on its [illegible] He had [illegible] a [illegible] He [illegible] planned [illegible] to [illegible] have to [illegible] him [illegible]

[illegible] the first [illegible] was [illegible] and [illegible] time to get away.

She would probably meet him at the station [illegible] green [illegible] her [illegible] of the car, and [illegible] with [illegible] A [illegible] with [illegible] her cheeks [illegible] and her azure eyes [illegible] John Ethridge had of [illegible] able to withstand [illegible] He might have [illegible] of her had she not attempted so obviously to take possession of him. Her air of proprietorship irritated him beyond words.

Maybe, the thought came to him a second later, she [illegible] him because of that [illegible] since the war. John flushed hotly at the thought. Not that he was so very self-conscious, but he detested pity, especially woman's pity. He was tall, well put together, straight as an arrow. Before he saw service in France he had considered himself a healthy [illegible] gas had left him with an [illegible] cough and, too, [illegible] awkward [illegible] of his left leg had [illegible] by a bullet. He [illegible] been wounded in [illegible] only half a man [illegible] not want Helen Long's or any other woman's sympathy.

The train [illegible] him into the country station [illegible] and looked about him [illegible] anyone about to [illegible] way to treat a guest [illegible] Helen's cottage [illegible] to walk without great [illegible] suffering after [illegible] cursed the fate that [illegible] him to Greendale. He [illegible] he was going to be miserable every moment he spent there.

There was nothing to do, however, but start walking [illegible] He started down a [illegible] which led through a [illegible] setting sun cast [illegible] gleaming through the [illegible] of the trees. At first his [illegible] evaporated at the beauty [illegible] him, but soon his bag grew [illegible] Darkness came on quickly [illegible] he stumbled over holes in the road. Twice he had to stop and rest, and he felt angry with himself for his weakness. He hurried on, hoping to reach the cottage where Helen and her friends had come out for the week-end. He hoped to get there before they finished dinner anyway. The moon had risen, and [illegible] liable to be off, in their cars for a joy-ride over the moonbathed [illegible].

He detested those people, especially Dan Michaels with his quiet smile and shifty eyes. The others were rattle-brained fools, but Michaels seemed always to be [illegible] like an evil genius on the edge of the crowd. And Helen seemed to be strangely attracted by him.

At last he turned the bend in the road, looked eagerly forward to [illegible] the gleam of lights ahead. But there were no lights. The cottage windows were dark, the place seemed deserted. [illegible] up the drive, [illegible] on the porch and knocked at the door. There was no answer. His knocking sounded [illegible] through empty halls. Then he tried the door, found it open and walked in. He half expected to [illegible] them all there—with the lights put out as a sort of joke. But search revealed no one anywhere about.

Well, he felt that he was entitled to make himself at home, since he had come as a reluctant guest. He lit a lamp (there was no electricity here) and foraged about in the kitchen, where he was delighted to find plenty to satisfy his hunger. Then he went back to the vine-covered porch, sat down far back in the shadows to enjoy a smoke. It was quiet, and peaceful, and he began to be glad that they had forgotten him. He put out the [illegible], the better to appreciate the moon beams which bathed the rolling hills. And now he began to reflect upon life, men and women and the parts they played in on the stage called life. He decided that he was wise to travel on alone; solitude suited him.

The headlights of a car gleamed suddenly in his face, for the turn from the highway was a rather abrupt one. He waited for a gay burst of laughter, a dash for the porch, for his name to be called. That was the usual thing. Perhaps they had remembered his coming and hurried back. But no, he saw that the lights were dimmed almost immediately and in the silence the shadowy forms of two men alighted from the car and walked cautiously up the drive.

"I [illegible] too much to scare 'em away," one of the men spoke in a [illegible] "Just a few shots at random [illegible] reckon they'll call the police [illegible] and it's ten good miles from here to a telephone."

"You had trouble, though, with one of the women, Mike?" the other man demanded as he stopped on the top step to light a cigarette.

"Yes," the other replied gruffly. "Woman who owns the cottage. She's a nervy one. Fired at me and ran up stairs, bolted her door. But she's not dangerous. Revolver empty now."

"How do you know?" the taller man questioned.

"I showed myself around the corner of the house, tempted her to shoot. She shot six times. Three [illegible] at my hat on a stick. Then I [illegible] she was locked in to stay. Moved trunks before the door, then I signalled for you. Easy money, [illegible]"

The tall man turned upon him scowling. "None of that!" he cried. "And you've blundered. For I didn't want Miss Long to know I had a hand in this."

"Of course you didn't, Dan Michaels," drawled John Ethridge [illegible] pulled his long length to its full height and strode toward the men. "Gentlemen crooks," he exclaimed. "Now you'd better get out!"

"Shall I bean 'm, Mr. Michaels?" asked the short man, and John found himself looking into a pair of ratty eyes.

Dan Michaels grinned. "Go ahead. He'll be an easy mark. Put him to sleep and take him away, Mike."

But John's long arm shot out and sent the blackjack spinning. His right fist delivered an upper cut, and the fellow Mike, dropped like lead at his feet. John felt a glow of exhilaration in his blood. He did not know he had the strength to do that!

But the next instant he was seized with a spell of coughing. It held him in a vise, though he fought [illegible] against it. He saw Dan Michaels looking at him with an amused smile, saw him kick the inert form of Mike aside and advance toward him; heard him say: "Beat it now, you has-been! Think Helen Long is falling for you, eh? Why, she's forgotten your existence. And she staged this hold up to throw a scare into her guests. New form of entertainment. And to make it more realistic she planned to have herself locked up, shooting through the window. Mike didn't know about [illegible] We had those poor devils frightened out of their wits. They'll be coming back in about an hour or two, dragging the sheriff and his posse with 'em, and all the blood hounds too! That girl is great!"

"That's a lie, Dan Michaels," a cool voice sounded behind them both and Michaels turned to look down the barrel of revolver. "Please go," Helen Long commanded. "I won't shoot unless you force me to—but I did have more bullets, got them as soon as I had forced open that door. And I know why you've done this. You saw that silly Gertrude Emmons wearing all her jewels out here. I heard you jollying her about them, questioning her about where she kept them hidden. Now go—and I advise you to leave the country, too, for I intend to report you to the police."

Michaels made a dash for the revolver, and a spurt of flame shot out of the darkness. John Ethridge saw the man cringe, grasp his shoulder and turn to jump from the porch and dash down the driveway.

He felt dizzy and weak. Helen's arm was about him, helping him into the dark living-room. He lay on the couch, and she left him but returned in a few minutes and bent over him anxiously, bathing his temples with a cool damp cloth.

"The other man—Mike — has gone," she said. "I watched him go. And Oh, John, I'd forgotten about your condition! All this afternoon I've been thinking of you walking up from the station, while I was locked in that room. Michaels scared me so—I wasn't sure but I suspected he was up to something. So I called you and insisted on your coming out. I knew I'd be safe with you here."

Ethridge sat up in the darkness, found a soft hand and clasped it. His head was light, but his heart was happy. So she felt safe with him.

The roar of an approaching motor cut the night stillness. There was a glare of light. Her guests were returning.

Together they went to the door to greet them. John's arm about Helen's shoulder. "It's all right," he called out heartily. "Helen and I have driven the bandits and we're both safe and sound."

"Yes," confirmed Helen Long proudly. "John's my hero, all right!"

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

A WELL-KNOWN orator says that while a few after-dinner speakers are made, the majority of them have to be born, but he doesn't give the reasons.

WHEN a man has nothing to say, there should be a law which would prevent him from taking an hour and forty-five minutes to say it.

PEOPLE who go to banquets nowadays get fifty cents' worth of food and nine dollars and a half worth of language.

THIS is a lot of money just to hear some guy recite the alphabet.

MOST orators don't know what to talk on, so they talk on indefinitely.

ONE fellow was so uninteresting that while he was speaking the other night, seventeen waiters quit.

BUT he was a brilliant speaker; he could bore you in any language.

HE spoke to an audience of six thousand people last week and only one man yawned. The rest of them didn't wake up.

THIS one fellow has refused to go to any more banquets until he gets over his insomnia.

WITH public dinners costing from five to twenty dollars there's no such thing as free speech in this country.

IT'S too bad that lock-jaw can't be made compulsory.

THE acoustics are so bad in some halls that we have to listen to the speeches twice. Once to the orator and once to his echo.

AN audience was making so much noise the other evening that the speaker complained. He said he couldn't hear himself talk. The toastmaster informed him that he wasn't missing anything.

IN fact, he told him that he should consider himself fortunate.

OF course, all orators don't bore you with long speeches. A lot of them can bore you with short ones.

BUT it's awful when a man starts his mouth going and forgets to turn it off.

WHILE some folks are very entertaining the only real place to enjoy an after dinner speech is in the deaf and dumb asylum.

THE SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON---BY HELEN ROWLAND

ASK ... not, oh, my daughter, why beauty creams are more costly than rubies, and why the makers of beauty creams dwell in palaces and ride in imported cars!

Verily, verily, so long as woman feareth wrinkles, will she spend her substance upon beauty creams! And so long as men continue to torture woman with doubt and uncertainty will she dwell in the dread of wrinkles!

For, alas, every gray hair in a woman's head, and every line upon her cheek, hath been caused not by sorrow, but by UNCERTAINTY!

Yea, from never knowing whether a man is telling the truth or merely regaling her with pleasant fibs and applesauce, doth a woman acquire wrinkles!

From never knowing whether he will "show up" for an engagement or will telephone his regrets at the last moment.

From never knowing WHEN he will come home for dinner, nor at what moment to put the steak in the oven.

From never knowing whether he taketh her seriously or taketh her merely as an evening's amusement.

From never knowing in what mood he will enter the house, nor whether he will come bringing flowers and kisses or a dark blue grouch.

From never knowing whether it is his teeth, his digestion, his conscience or his soul wherefrom he is suffering.

From never knowing how much of his alibis to believe and how much to credit to the fertility of his imagination.

From never knowing, when the telephone ringeth, whether he is going to break his appointment, to announce his marriage to another woman or to assure her that he still loves her and "will be there in ten minutes."

From never knowing whether he hath truly been "in conference" all afternoon, or merely playing golf, or taking his stenographer for a spin in his new car.

From never knowing WHAT is going on inside a man's heart, in his mind or in his daily life! Thus, oh, my daughter, do women acquire wrinkles, and the makers of beauty creams continue to wax rich because of man's fickleness and caprice!

SELAH.

MAN WANTS TO TELL HIS JOY TO THE WORLD

Sore on leg healed after years of suffering

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10:—"I just want to let you know what your Resinol has done for me. For many years I had a bad sore on my leg. I had tried a number of different treatments, including Electric Baths and different recommended salves. I suffered terribly at times as my work compelled me to be on my feet a great deal. Several weeks ago I saw Resinol advertised and in desperation I bought a small jar of this Ointment, not believing it would do me any good. However, after using it for one week I was surprised to see the ulcer was healing and by the time I had finished the second jar the healing was complete. I am glad to tell the world what Resinol Ointment has done for me and I will be glad to recommend it to any sufferer." (Signed) Max Endert, 63½ Jersey Street.

Ask your druggist today for Resinol Ointment.

One Side of the Story

A village baker calls Mrs. Hicks, who has just moved to town.

"The vest-maker?"

"Oh, Best the BAKER! Now I understand."

"Yes, I just moved into the old Higgins house today. How did you know?"

"I see. Well, I WAS doing a little thinking about our supper, but it will have to be gypsy style because we're all upset here."

"Yes, a loaf of graham and one of white bread. Sure enough — a dozen plain doughnuts."

"Make it apple pie."

"The children like the assorted cookies best. About two pounds."

"Saturday night? I haven't thought that far ahead. Still, you can put me down for a quart of hot beans and a loaf of brown-bread, all right."

• • •

"Well, that will be great if you bring them yourself. Then we can get acquainted. I haven't met a soul here yet."

"Yes, we ordered our telephone some time ago. They put it in yesterday. It's a great help."

"Yes, I'd be glad to have you call me by telephone two or three times a week—say about 10 o'clock in the morning. Then I'll be sure of getting fresh 'stuff.'"

AMERICA is the greatest land of publicity and advertising in the world. Perhaps this is why we lead in business and radio. Radio advertisers are no different from the rest of the big business men. When they are having a broadcast they buy newspaper and store space. They announce it over the air. They advertise in the street cars.

Then comes the night of the program and we listen in. The next day we read about it in the papers and hear our friends comment upon it. Soon the program is lost in ever-increasing business cares.

But the following week we hear more. For the advertiser tells us what wonderful stars he is presenting. He moves us to thrills with beautiful descriptions of artists, orchestras, marches, solos, quartets, duets and so and so.

Instead of telling us what wonderful things we are going to hear, think of what a wonderful impression would be made if the sponsor told us what we were missing through his courtesy. For instance he could announce that but for him the Fiddlers Three from the Blind Men's home would have played. Now an intermission of fifteen minutes is obtained. Then we listeners would have time to light our pipes and go out for a bite.

Coming back we would discover that "So many have sent in requests not to hear any more music that we are glad to announce the next number would have been played but for the requests. "It was entitled 'Alone in the dark and not a match.' Stand by for a while and we will continue."

* * *

Such a broadcast would be highly advertised by the word-of-mouth disease. It would be unique, original (if nobody reads this) and quite an innovation. It might start a new era. Now everyone tries to stay on the air as long as possible. With new conditions broadcasters might try to stay off as long as possible.

The one staying off longest and saying least would be the best broadcast (and most popular?)

And once this plan is started why not extend it further? Some big trust could buy all the air around Boston for an evening and proclaim a golden, silver or silent-money night. Silent night by the Hot-Cold Radio Company would be donated to all those unable to get distance on other nights. The company would get wonderful publicity by mentioning that owners of Hot-Cold receivers have silent night every night.

Think of how such a program would be received with open arms and windows. After a brief intermission of half an hour or two, the voiceless quartet of Quiette, Ills. would perform.

But we hesitate, for silent broadcasts would enrich these few people who have not as yet sung or played or gargled over the air.

The bottled boys were on good last night. Their banjos banjoed and tangoed until all the Northern fingers must have been warmed. Then the Eskimos started to play.

We heard them from the main station, WEAF, as well as from our civic pride, WEEI. WGY of Schenectady also let us listen to the Reser ensemble. The Eskimos brought back old days with "Linger Awhile." This they played near the end of the hour. Perhaps it was a gentle hint that they would have liked to play for more than an hour. We would have listened.

* * *

WBZ demonstrated what we advocate at the head of our column today. They were silent last night for a long while, thus enabling us to pick up some stations near 333. WMCA of New York city came through well at times with plenty of signal strength. Another station which interferes with WBZ is WNJ, New Jersey. As our local had some trouble in remaining on the air we heard the New Jerseyite.

From WNAC came solos, pianos, orchestras and parrots.

Mr. Klein's able orchestra led the program with overture from "Carmen." As this top notch musical group had the air for fifteen minutes we heard a good conefful. There is something thrilling and awesome in hearing the crashes, swellings, rapid crescendoes and skillful movement of theme as it grows and wanes under the experienced baton of Joseph Klein.

After a while they let Del Castillo show that he could play the organ.

WMAK of Buffalo was grinding out some horrible advice on what would happen to fallen arches if they fell from grace. But it turned out to be only an advertising talk; something about the "fizzical emulsion shoe polish." That's how it sounded to us.

* * *

For the last number on the Eskimoing WGY we heard a Victor Herbert march. Much of it was carried by a banjo and violin. In the last local parade we did not see any brass bands with violins and banjos.

* * *

KDKA, WWRL, WAAM, WMSG, WEAF, WPG, WJZ and others was our score. Signals were much better than they have been the last few nights. It was an interesting night all around.

NEED HALL FOR CONVENTIONS, PETERS SAYS

By FRED TOYE.

Boston's prospects of getting the national Democratic convention of 1928 hinge upon the point of an adequate convention hall. If the proposed municipal auditorium is constructed before the date set for the assembly which will select the next Democratic Presidential candidate, Boston has a good chance of getting it.

This is the opinion of former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, chairman of the committee of sixty organized for the purpose of bringing the convention here.

"For the first time in many years Boston is in a position to take care of a great national gathering of this sort, so far as hotel accommodations are concerned," said the ex-Mayor.

CRYING NEED FOR YEARS.

"The one thing that is lacking is a great and adequate gathering place. The new Arena or Mechanics Building might serve, but we ought to have a new auditorium to welcome these delegates to. It has been our one crying need for years.

"There are three ways in which a municipal auditorium could be financed. By private capital, by the City of Boston or by the Commonwealth. I think it would be possible to find a precedent for the construction of the hall by the State."

Emile Coulon, proprietor of the Westminster Hotel, and a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce Convention Bureau, expressed himself as heartily in favor of the project.

"My suggestion is that it be planned with reference to a new union station. I believe that a union station should be erected on the site of the present Back Bay and Trinity Place stations, or else back of the Lenox Hotel. The auditorium should be nearby."

IN HOTEL DISTRICT.

E. R. Grabow of the United Fruit Company believes that few public improvements are so badly needed as an auditorium suitable for great gatherings.

"The hall should be built so that its seating capacity would be flexible," said Mr. Grabow. "It should be arranged so that groups of 1,500 to 10,000 could be accommodated. This might be done by having two halls, a larger and a smaller one, that could be thrown into one when occasion demanded.

"Boston should certainly have a municipal auditorium. Chicago has one. So has Cleveland, Detroit, and nearly every great city in the United States.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON:
1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parkin problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare wth any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotelsmay be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND:
1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New Englad agriculture to better marketing methods.

TELL Them About Maine!

More Visitors, Business, Money AND Good Citizens, When Americans Everywhere Come to Know Tarkington's "MOST BEAUTIFUL STATE"

Opening chapters of Maine's great adventure in publicity have been so strikingly successful that, aside from the fact that the yearly "ante" is raised from $25,000 to $50,000, there is little or no news in the report from Augusta that the Eighty-third Legislature is being urged to "let the good work go on."

It SHOULD go on, as a matter of course.

What IS news, however, is the disturbing rumor which comes down from Capitol Hill that there is opposition; not so much to the AMOUNT contemplated by the resolve presented by Senator J. Sherman Douglas, of the Committee on State Publicity, as to "this notion" that the Pine Tree State needs to "beat its own drum."

One SUSPECTS politics, which is taken as seriously in Maine as in any of the other States of New England.

In public affairs, Down East, this has been a hectic year. There have been intra-party fights. Section has been arrayed against section, group against group. There still remains the "power" question. Feelings have been hurt, dignity wounded, pride injured; brethren have come to be suspicious, one of another.

Any of these things may EXPLAIN the reported threat of factions in the Legislature to upset the publicity apple-cart, but all combined will not EXCUSE a vote to abandon the most forward-looking movement undertaken by any Eastern State in our generation.

Why, it was MAINE that led the way in that awakening of New England which now is one of the most significant facts in America!

Maine even got the publicity jump on New Hampshire, which had been taking Winnepesaukee and the White Mountains for granted; and on the Green Mountain State, whose attitude appeared to be that Champlain and Mt. Mansfield and the Connecticut were "here to be seen, if anyone cares to come and see them."

Together, ALL THREE of the Northern States are MILES ahead of the rest of us, in the publicity field, BUT MAINE LED THE WAY.

What possibly can be in the minds of legislators who would toss away all the splendid things the early future promises as the result of Maine's publicity campaign? . . . There comes to mind only an historic epitaph:

"It is so soon that I am done for,
I wonder what I was begun for."

Maine MAY not need much advertising in Boston, but everywhere else in the country Americans are waiting for the story of what Mr. Booth Tarkington calls the "most beautiful State we have in this country."

Here, where Kennebunk and Ogunquit and Christmas Cove are household words, we know that "motoring" means Maine, that "fishing" means Maine, that "hunting" means Maine, that "camping" means Maine, and that "Winter sports" means South Poland and other places.

When your Bostonian thinks of black bass—as he WILL be thinking now, in five or six terribly long weeks—he conjures up a picture of Cobbosseecontee, or Maranacook, or maybe Meddebemps. Hunting? The Magalloway country, or "up Jackman way," or the great forest country of Aroostook County.

Bostonians KNOW!

But the rest of the country needs to be TOLD—and told again, and again, and again.

One of the States of the Pacific Coast, which makes much of its "tourist business," here lately has been heralding the announcement that in 1926 the number of automobiles which came in from "outside" was 125,000.

Month after month, last Summer, MORE than that many "foreign" cars entered the State of Maine through a single gateway!

TELL them that, Maine.

They call one of the sixteen counties of Maine—a county quite as big in area as our State of Massachusetts—"Potato Land."

Aroostook's potato crop, last year, was worth $60,000,000!

Tell them THAT, Maine.

The shore fisheries were valued at $59,000,000!

THAT, too.

More than 1,000,000 visitors came last year to this paradise of the tourist, this haven of the seeker after health and rest.

Many were brought in by PUBLICITY, paid for by the State in co-operation with cities and towns.

More will come next year, and more the year after—IF there is no let-up in a work begun with such intelligence and energy—and SOME OF THEM WILL STAY!

Booth Tarkington tells WHY they will stay; hear HIM:

> "To my mind Maine is the most beautiful State we have in this country, but what I have found more appealing than its beauty is the fact of its homeliness.
> "These two qualities are seldom combined. I think that it is easier for a stranger to feel at home in Maine than in almost any other place I ever knew.
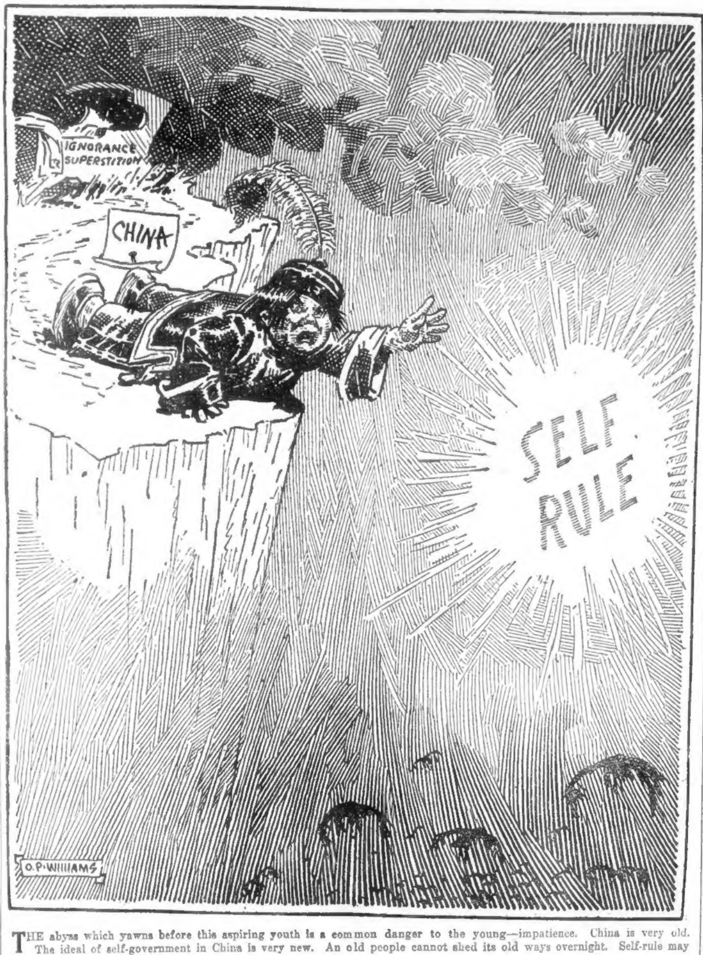
> "That is perhaps the reason why so many visitors cease to BE visitors and get to thinking of Maine as HOME."

The Boston Evening American joins with the progressive press of the Pine Tree State in the earnest hope that when the Douglas resolve comes up for action at Augusta, legislators, always thinking of their great State as home, will drop their political squabbles, forget personal rivalries and differences, and VOTE FOR MAINE.

Keep up a good work!

Won't Be Happy Till He Gets It

By O. P. Williams



THE abyss which yawns before this aspiring youth is a common danger to the young—impatience. China is very old. The ideal of self-government in China is very new. An old people cannot shed its old ways overnight. Self-rule may be a natural right, but it cannot be effectively practiced without preparation.

YOUTH'S RESILIENCE IS REMARKABLE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHEN George Young, a Canadian boy of 17 years, succeeded in swimming the Catalina Channel which separates Catalina Island from the mainland of California, he illustrated the resilience of youth.

That Young was able to stay in the cold water so long and was able to function so successfully marks him as one of the greatest athletes of his time.

His life history reads like a Horatio Alger romance. He came down from Canada on a motorcycle and landed in Los Angeles with only sixty cents in his pocket.

Now he has signed up a movie contract as well as got the Wrigley prize and doubtless will be capitalized by venders of entertainment and make his fortune.

Whether it will ruin him or not is yet to be determined. Many men can stand adversity who cannot stand prosperity.

His exploit was a demonstration of youthful pluck and endurance. The prizes for physical prowess go to young men. By and by the prize fighter or golf expert gets old and muscle-bound and some young man takes his place.

It is interesting to note, however, that the great positions in the business world are filled by older men.

Youth is a time for physical excellence and old age is a time for mental. Many of the great business concerns of the day are in the hands of old men.

Youth needs to make hay while the sun shines, for youth will not always last. If a man, however, depends upon mental prowess he is apt to keep it up to a very old age unless those powers fail.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

UP ALOFT

WHO said you couldn't teach an old dog new tricks? Staff Sergeant ANDREW ANDERSON, attached to the airport in EAST BOSTON, with the regular army unit, smashes that old belief. For nearly 20 years SERGEANT ANDERSON was a cavalryman. He admits he expected to end his soldiering on horseback. And then he shifted to the air service. "When it comes to riding horses, boy, give me a plane any day in the week," he says.

TESTS

During his recent visit to Boston, BRUCE BARTON, author and advertising expert, told a Boston Evening American representative that when he hires a new employe he tells him to read the Lord's Prayer and the 23rd Psalm, both being models of good, simple English. "These two, written almost entirely in one syllable words, have influenced more people than any other writings," said MR. BARTON.

FIGHTING PARISH

News item recently stated that Roxbury, N. H., with 33 voters, had no births, deaths or marriages in 1926. Not long ago the writer visited this town. He saw there a church erected in Colonial days. The pews faced the only doors and the preacher delivered his sermon looking at the backs of his congregation. It is stated they attended church armed with muskets and that it was precautionary for all to face the doors, to be on guard against hostile Indians.

VANDALS

The former Notre Dame Academy building on BERKELEY STREET is in the hands of wreckers. One more of the old Park Square district landmarks is disappearing. The SISTER SUPERIOR states that when the building was vacated for the new school, it was in perfect condition. Vandals made it almost worthless. Windows were shattered, plumbing ripped out, and even the brick wall enclosing the cloister garden was breached.

SHINERS

While the tired businessman dreams of a fishing trip to Maine or New Brunswick he hopes to take later in the season, BOSTON boys are emulating Izaak Walton right in the heart of the Hub. Using bits of wire screen and other original paraphernalia they have caught hundreds of shiners left in the two-foot wide rivulet which remained after the pond in the PUBLIC GARDEN had been drained. No doubt some of them got a "whaling" because of their muddy shoes after responding to the "call of the wild."

A Strange, Dreadful Crime

What Will the Public Wish to Have Done to Man and Woman Who Have Confessed a Cowardly Deed?

The brutal, cruel killing of Albert Snyder, followed by the confessions of the dead man's widow and Henry Judd Gray that they had planned the murder and carried it out together, is one of the most shocking events in the long history of crime.

The man, coldly murdered as he lay sleeping, was a good husband, a good father, a hard working, earnest man.

Neighbors testify that because his wife was younger, and "needed amusement," he took her to parties, sitting up late against his will, feeling that he owed consideration to her youth and need of pleasure.

She knew another man, confessed that she had been intimate with him for more than two years, and had recently caused her unfortunate husband to increase the insurance on his life. Then, according to her confession and that of the other man, the wife and the outsider decided that they would murder the husband "to get rid of him."

He was in the way, and interfered, although he little knew it, with their plans and pleasures. And there was the increased insurance.

Murders are only too frequent in these after-the-war bootleg days, but conditions surrounding this particularly atrocious crime horrify millions that read about it, and are puzzled by it.

Normal human beings ask themselves how so horrible a crime can be possible. There was no "sudden anger," everything was planned deliberately in advance. There had been no violent interference with the plans, or the criminal relationship of the man and women that did the killing. The unfortunate husband was entirely without suspicion, anger or malice.

How was it possible for the two that murdered a sleeping, defenseless man, to look at each other, after the crime had been committed?

What peace in life could either have hoped for thereafter?

How could the woman that planned and helped in the murder of her child's father have lain down calmly near him for hours, her feet and hands loosely tied, and a handkerchief stuffed into her mouth, as part of a foolish plan to deceive the police? Of what sort was the mind that could plan so desperate and cowardly a deed? Under what circumstances did one of the two first say to the other: "Let us kill him?"

The man, it is suggested, will plead insanity. The woman, no doubt, will secure the services of an able lawyer—there is enough life insurance to pay him. Some defense, for her coercion, the dominating, "hypnotic" influence of the other man—will be offered as her excuse. It is not conceivable that the court will take it seriously or that lawyers will be able to uphold the retractions and denials of guilt following the double confession.

What will be done if the two are convicted of murder?

What will the public wish to have done? A majority, perhaps, will demand "death." Would that vindicate the law's majesty? Should public justice imitate the private murderers, follow up their killing with an iron bar and strangling wire, with two other killings in the electric chair?

Does a government that kills, when ITS turn comes, really inspire horror of killing, or does it make killing seem under certain conditions RIGHT and APPROPRIATE?

Would it not be better to have this man and woman, if proved guilty, expiate their crime through years of imprisonment, at hard work, lasting until freed by death, sent from the Highest Court?

They have confessed to a most horrible and cowardly murder.

Would that horror be wiped out or made better by killing them?

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE you divorced?

Did the court give the children with the provision that the other half of the firm should see them once in a while?

And is that arrangement raising the very Deuce?

Then here's a letter that was written for YOU:

Dear Elsie—I surely need your help. My father and mother are separated. Both of them want me to live with them. I don't want to be forced to choose between them, and you ought to hear the row it raises.

Of course, they're both mad at each other, and always talking about each other to everyone else, and especially to me. When I won't take sides they get mad at me.

I've lived with both of them about two or three times each so far, and, honest, Elsie, I am so disgusted with them that it just has about killed my love. Why can't grown people keep their quarrels to themselves? And why do they always want to drag their children into them?

It isn't the children's fault that their parents can't get along. The children will have plenty of trouble of their own to face some day. Why should they be dragged into their parents' quarrels?

And now I have to decide which one I will live with. And wherever I go there will be nothing but fights.

Honest, Elsie, I wish you would give them the works! D. K.

I'd like to "give them the works," little pal.

Indeed, I think it is about time that Uncle Sam gave such warring parents the works. It seems to me that there should be some way of binding divorced parents to keep the peace before the children or to forfeit child or alimony if the peace is broken.

So often divorce is obtained on the grounds that "it is harmful to bring up a child in a loveless home." With tear-filled eyes Mamma makes her plea before the judge and is granted young Billy or Bessie. And Papa is told to support them or break rocks for the country.

Then what happens?

Having been freed from her uncongenial mate and inharmonious atmosphere, does Mamma proceed to establish a home filled with peace and good will?

We'll say she doesn't!

From that day on the children are regaled with sinister recitals of Papa's perfidy and weeping accounts of all Mamma has suffered at his hands. When they go to see Papa on their monthly visits they are warned against the Monster before they leave, and quizzed on their return.

DON'T BELIEVE A WORD YOUR FATHER SAYS!
E.R.

Rare, indeed, is the Mother who maintains a dignified silence about the man from whom she has parted. And as for striving to co-operate with him for the children's good—such things just AIN'T, my friend.

Outrageous? Yes. Yet how we'd howl if the government decreed that children of divorced parents should be given a fair chance and raised in institutions!
